CITY BOARD GETS GREEN LIGHT ON BONDS

City's $159,000 Sewer Aid Grant Request Is Denied

The City of Washington C. H. has been refused a federal grant of $159,000 for sewage treatment plant expansion.

Council had requested federal assistance in August when it completed plans for a $533,000 plant program which includes plans for rebuilding some parts of the present sewer system as well as modernizing and increasing the capacity of the treatment plant.

A letter from the Ohio Department of Health read to the legislative body Wednesday night points out that approximately 50 application have been received by that body for grants totaling nearly 7 million dollers.

However, the letter says, only $1,655,100 is available for such porjects in Ohio during the 1957-58 fiscal year.

* * *

"IT IS EVIDENT that the funds available are insufficient to make grants to all eligible applicants", E. H. Waring, the department's chief sanitary engineer said. "Therefore the Ohio Water Pollution Control Board adopted criteria for establishing priority of eligible sewage treatment projects on the basis of financial as well as pollution control needs."

"Your municipality did not receive priority for a grant, and you are advised to proceed with the construction of sewage treatment works without a federal grant. Inasmuch as the federal funds are limited, many municipalities must proceed. . .without the benefit of federal aid."

The denial of the grant presents a serious problem for the city, councilmen agreed, although they had considered the fact that the city might not qualify for assistance. Additional study will now be required.

Had the city received federal aid, it would have met the balance of the cost through increased sewer rates which become effective Jan. 1 plus an existing balance in the sewer fund.

DP&L Ready To Submit New Gas Rate Ordinance

The Dayton Power and Light Co. in a letter to City Manager James F. Parkinson, has announced that its representatives will appear befor City Council Dec. 11 to discuss withdrawal of a gas rate ordinance proposed April 25 and to submit a new ordinance.

The April proposal called for an 8.3 per cent increase for residential and commercial consumers.

Parkinson said that he had received no word on what the new proposal would be, but he said that he has been told unofficially that the company will ask for 12 per cent increase for the first year under a new ordinance and a 20 per cent increase the second year.

DP&L has asked a 20 per cent increase at Greenfield which has been fighting the company in the Public Utilities Commission.

Council gave the company's letter brief discussion Wednesday night but took no action.

Rain May Spoil Holiday in Ohio

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The weatherman, who forecast "fair" weather for most of Ohio for Thanksgiving Day, this morning said light rain might spoil the holiday.

77 Persons Due At Utahan's Table

MARRIOTT, Utah (AP)—When J. Lawrence Slater sits down to his Thanksgiving dinner today, he expects to have 76 other people sharing his table.

Among the special guests are Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Budge. The doctor has delivered 38 of Slater's grandchildren and two of his great grandchildren.

Seventh Grade Boy Especially Grateful On This Holiday

DALLAS (AP) — Mrs. Frank Reeves gave her seventh graders at St. Edwards Academy a simple assignment Wednesday: One paragraph on why we should be grateful on Thanksgiving Day.

One said, "I thank God for my good parents and the free and happy new life in the United States, the freedom of religion, the nice schools and teachers in this wonderful country. I learn here many new things. I thank also to God for the food and clothing. This is my first Thanksgiving Day."

It was written by Imre Kocsis, 12, a Hungarian refugee laboring with a language he started to learn only last February.

For All These Blessings, We Give Thanks....

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM E. DAVIS, White Rd., give thanks this Thanksgiving Day for the bounties of providence and their freedoms as Americans. Born near Good Hope, Davis has spent most of his life in Fayette County, and next July 7 he and Mrs. Davis will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary. The couple have five children, three of whom live in Fayette County. They are Mrs. Paul Blackmore, Mrs. Floyd McClain and Mrs. M. W. Libbey. Another daughter, Mrs. Joseph Hurst, lives in Hamilton and a son, Dr. William E. Davis, Jr., is a veterinarian in Columbus. Not the least of their blessings, Mr. and Mrs. Davis count their four grandsons, two of whom, James and Herbert Libbey, are shown with them.

County Tax Duplicate Up by $2,391,532

The 1957 Fayette County tax duplicate, on which real estate and personal property owners will be paying their taxes starting in December, has risen to a total of $64,051,989.

This means a 1957 increase over the previous year's county tax duplicate of $2,391,532, according to figures made public by County Auditor Harry R. Allen. The tax collection date has not yet been announced.

Next year's duplicate on which taxes are to be paid, probably beginning in December 1958, is expected to show a considerable increase over the present year when the reappraisal of real estat will be finished and new values applied to the 1958 duplicate.

In addition it is probable that next year's duplicate also will carry the Washington C. H. and Miami Trace districts' school bond issues, if no legal complications intervene.

* * *

REASONS GIVEN for most of the increased 1957 tax duplicate values, according to estimates from the county auditor's office, are increased listings on personal property, estimated to show approximately $1,500,000 above last year's total in the county.

Personal property taxes are derived from income on stocks and bonds, agricultural livestock and crops, private road construction equipment merchandising inventories and a few other income producing items.

The remainder of the 1957 duplicate increase is in real estate and public utility values property, due to construction of new homes, additions and other buildings completed and in use during the prescnt year.

Only two places within the county showed a decrease in tax duplicate values during this year.

One was the Bloomingburg corporation which had a $15,060 decrease reportedly due to a dropoff in business inventories.

The other was in the Madison South school district area where there was a $1,590 decrease resulting from a lowering of the personal property listings.

* * *

APPEARING BELOW is a table showing the duplicate values for townships, incorporated villages and the city of Washington C. H., for the years 1956 and '57, indicating the gain or decrease this year over the previous year's tax value duplicate.

Santa Due in Washington C.H. at 1 p.m. Friday

"You better watch out,
You better not cry,
Better not pout,
I'm telling you why:
Santa Claus is coming to town."

The traditional Christmas song is really true, and for all the interested younguns (and who isn't interested, whatever their age may be?) the time is 1 p. m. Friday.

True, this is only Thanksgiving Day, but Christmas is only four weeks away and the Christmas season will be formally welcomed with Santa's arrival either on the rooftop of the Pavey Bldg., on Court St. or the Courthouse.

William Stoughton, Chamber of Commerce liaison man with Santa's headquarters, says that the old gentleman's plans call for sitting up headquarters on the Courthouse steps once he is assisted down from the Pavey Bldg. by members of the Washington C. H. Fire Department and their big extension ladder truck. Once he has been escorted to the steps he will welcome all the youngsters in Fayette County and, at the last report he is expected to have around 1,600 boxes of hard candy to give to his little friends.

* * *

SANTA'S headquarters informed Stoughton that the candy had been ordered from Art's Candy Co., Washington C. H., and that the company figures it will have an adequate supply available for the 1,500 to 2,000 children expected to welcome Santa.

One of Santa's big concerns this year, according to Stoughton, was for the safety of all the children awaiting his arrival. It seems that in the past, and at other places around the world where Santa visits, some children have suffered injuries from all the excitement and the milling of the crowds. Not wanting any local youngster to be injured, Santa asked that ev-

Quick Action Seen On Start of School Building Program

The Washington C. H. Board of Education is free today to sell $645,000 in building bonds and proceed immediately with the construction of two new elementary buildings and additions to two existing buildings!

In a telephone conversation with the board's clerk late Wednesday afternoon, William Evatt, of the firm of Bricker, Marburger, Evatt and Barton, said that after a review of decisions and pleadings in the Miami Trace Supreme Court suit, he and his associates see nothing now that would preclude the board from advertising and selling bonds.

W. A. Smith, city superintendent of schools, said Wednesday night that there is no doubt in his mind that members of the board will take immediate action toward advertising the bonds at the board's regular meeting Monday night.

There will be no special meeting because both Board President Robert Terhune and member Elmer Reed are out of the city for the weekend, but Smith said that formal resolutions already have been drawn setting Jan. 2 as the date for opening bids on the bonds. These await board approval

* * *

IT ALSO is possible that the board, by advertising for bond bids and construction bids concurrently could open the latter on Jan. 6. This could mean that construction of the new Eastside school, the new Belle Aire school and the additions to Rose Avenue and Cherry Hill grade buildings would get under way by midwinter, weather permitting.

"I am very happy," Supt. Smith told The Record - Herald, "that the sale of bonds is now possible and that we can proceed with construction as soon as bids are received."

"This should make possible the elimination of emergency classrooms during the 1958-59 school year."

Smith said that it is his understanding that the Columbus bond attorneys could now say that the bonds can be sold because Mrs. Senath Thompson, Miami Trace board clerk, was dismissed as a defendant in the Supreme Court suit and would consequently file no further pleadings that might throw doubt on the court's earlier decision on the Citizens Committee issue.

* * *

IT HAD previously been the bond counsel's stand that the city board could not sign a certificate of non-litigation because of the existence of a Citizens Committee in Fayette County.

They seemed to think, according to Smith, that since the Miami Trace case has not finally been resolved, the court's June 19 decision that a Citizens Committee could not restrict the rights of a board of education to issue voted bonds might not be a final decision on the Citizens Committee matter.

The law firm, after a review of all facets of a Nov. 6 decision on the Miami Trace case, now appears to feel that there is now no possibility of an answer being filed which would change the ruling of June 19.

The new development apparently means that it will not be necessary to follow through on Board President Robert Terhune's request for an attorney general's opinion on aspects of the city bond issue. This, however, will be a matter for the board to decide.

* * *

IN A STATEMENT to Reed Smith, representative of the Associated Press in Columbus, Evatt said:

"We are advised that there is going to be no further amended answer filed by the clerk in the Miami Trace School District litigation." "We also are advised that the territory transfer issue which was in the Miami Trace litigation as one of the defenses of the interveners in the case is not applicable to the Washington C. H. City School District.

The interveners (Charles Fabb, Frank S. Jackson, Ralph Penn, Maynard Wilson, Mrs. C. Elton Rhoad and W. A. Rodgers) had claimed among their 12 "defenses" or charges against Miami

President Set For Big Dinner

Reports of excellent recovery progress cheered both the President and his family, and they arranged a holiday get-together at the White House. Traditional turkey was on the dinner menu.

About the only change in the Eisenhower program was that the dinner was to be held in the nation's capital instead of at the farm home near Gettysburg, Pa.

Present in the White House living quarters for today's feast was the President's son, Army Maj. John Eisenhower, his wife and children.

There was no reason to assume that the President would not do the honors at the festive board—carving the turkey.

The chief executive was pictured by officials surrounding him as having no thought of resigning his high position as the result of his present disability.

* * *

"IT IS QUITE obvious he is like a caged lion," Vice President Nixon said Wednesday night after he had talked with the convalescing President. Nixon added Eisenhower is "champing at the bit" to get back to work fulltime.

And then the vice president added: "I have no reason to believe that the President is considering or will consider resigning.

"After having seen him, after having talked also to his doctor, I am convinced that his recovery is sure, and that it may very well be even sooner than would normally be the case.

"And I would say that so far as the President himself is concerned, there was no hint at all of resigning, and there has also been no discussion whatever, here at the meetings which I have attended, of the President finding it necessary to resign because of this temporary disability.

"I would like to scotch once and for all, if I can, any rumors to the effect that the President, first, is in a condition which would make it necessary for him to consider resigning. And, second, that the President himself or anybody in the President's official family have discussed or are considering the possibility of resignation."

The joint effort is being launched "as another measure in a full-scale campaign on our part for the prevention of auto accidents," Robert Jefferson, president of the Fayette County Insurance Assn., commented.

He said that law officers from the city, the county and the state have offered the "fullest cooperation" in the venture.

* * *

THE SIGNS were purchased by the insurance association from the safety council. They will be given free to anyone who asks for them at the insurance agency offices of Jefferson in Bloomingburg, Mac Dews, Leonard Korn, Tom Mark, Max Morrow, Sam Parrett, Paul Pennington, Richard R. Willis and Robert Lewis in Washington C. H.

Parkinson's proclamation calls on "all of our citizens" to exert every effort "to greatly reduce traffic accidents, thus making our community a safer and happier place in which to live."

Text of the proclamation follows:

3 Benefactors To Be Honored By College

Governor To Attend Weekend Ceremony At Wilmington College

WILMINGTON—The service of a long-time Wilmington College professor and the generous support to the college by an industrial firm and an individual benefactor have been recognized by Wilmington College in the naming of three new buildings to be dedicated on the Quaker college campus this weekend during a three-day dedication program.

The 35 years of service by Dr. W. R. Pyle, professor of mathematics and physics, on the Wilmington College faculty are being recognized by the college by the naming of the new student center as the Pyle Student Union.

Dr. Pyle, a graduate of Purdue and Ohio State Universities, joined the Wilmington faculty in 1921. In assuming extra duties and contact for the college to industrial firms in recent years, Dr. Pyle has been a leading force in the ten-year development of the permanent facilities on the campus. The center is another example of the Wilmington College student "self-help" spirit, with many hours of work being supplied by students as the building was constructed.

A NEW four-story dormitory for men, the second building on the campus to be constructed with funds raised during the "Kettering challenge," will be known as Austin Hall, in honor of the late Dr. George McK. Austin and through the generosity of Albert M. Austin a cousin of the late Dr. Austin.

A plaque to be placed on the building will read "1957. . .Through the generosity of Albert M. Austine this building is dedicated to the memorial of Dr. George McK. Austin, physician and scientist, and to other members of the pioneer family of that name who contributed their share toward the up building of this area and this college."

The first building constructed with funds raised in the "Kettering challenge" was Friends Hall, a dormitory for 100 women. The "Kettering challenge" was a campaign resulting from the challenge by Dr. Charles F. Kettering, inventor and scientist who pledged $10,000 to Wilmington College if it could raise an additional $300,000 among its friends, alumni, church and community supporters. The fund was oversubscribed.

THE THIRD building to be dedicated during the weekend program is an Armco Steelox building, given to the College by the Armco, Inc., of Middletown. This building, to be used as a college maintenance building, will be known as The Armco Building.

The three buildings will be dedicated during a three-day program which will feature the appearance on the campus of Dr. Kettering, C. William O'Neill, Harold Fey, editor of the Christian Century, Benjamin Fine, education editor of the New York Times, and the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Thor Johnson.

Park Forest, Ill., Folk Enjoy Luxury Bus Ride

Commuters' Dream Comes True

By FRANK WATSON

PARK FOREST, Ill.—Residents of this suburb would like to change that old tune to read, "Did you ever see a dream RIDING? Well, we did!" Such a revised tune would sing their praises for a luxury express service dubbed the dream bus.

Luxury is the right word.

This red and cream colored "dream bus" is really a living room on wheels for commuters making the 31-mile trip into and out of Chicago's Loop district.

For those Dagwood Bumsteads who have to rush to catch this express bus in the morning, two of its best features are the coffee and doughnuts served by an attractive hostess and the two electric razors on hand for quick shaves.

* * *

There are full drapes to keep out the bothersome sunshine, wall paper that resembles real wood paneling and gray wall-to-wall carpeting to create that "you never left home" feeling.

For those gin rummy fiends who can't wait until lunch time, card tables are on tap, also.

Paul Dittmar, president of South Suburban Safeway Lines, dreamed up the idea of the "dream bus." He ran an ad calling for residents who wanted a "more deluxe" form of transportation.

A group of residents than banded together and formed the Park Forest Commuters club for this express purpose. They pay $29.40 monthly for the pleasure of riding this plush palace on wheels five days a week. This tab amounts to slightly more than that of riding a commuter train.

* * *

"TOPS" and "wonderful" are the reactions of some of the 16 members of the club.

"You can be sure of a seat" and "relaxation is of the greatest importance" are other sentiments.

The 44-seat bus, itself, is a regular $23,000 one that has been remodeled for another $7,000.

* * *

ROBERT THOMPSON, operations manager of Safeway, says the company will expand this de-lux service to other communities if this experiment works out with the Park Forest group.

"We have also had inquiries from other cities and towns about the "dream bus," Thompson said.

Bus stewardess Karen Glochler holds mirror for passenger Richard O. Palmer as he uses electric shaver aboard the "dream" bus. Note TV set in background.

"They want to know the details of how we set it up. Of course, there is an outside chance that doesn't work out the way we planned."

As Thompson pointed out, Safeway didn't originate the idea, but it's getting a thorough trial. "We're trying to give a first class service to passengers who want more than just a bus ride with the doors flapping."

The firm also makes money on the bus when it is not in use on the hour-long "luxury run." It can be chartered by business and social organizations during the weekends or evening hours.

* * *

WHEN the bus isn't carrying the "carriage trade," it is used on a regular, multi-stop run for shippers and workers. On these trips, riders pay a regular fare, but they don't get to use the television set, razors, card tables and other plush accommodations. They don't get fed, either.

If this idea catches on, commuters over the nation may have to climb aboard a "dream bus" to keep up with the Joneses."

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Two police cars converged on an auto parked on a downtown street after a report that a man in the auto was cleaning a pistol.

Business Notes

A remodeling project on the front windows of the G. C. Murphy Store has been completed according to Manager Russ Hinchee.

Seven new "See - Thru" windows have been installed leaving only three old style display windows.

No immediate plans are contemplated for changing the three other windows.

Hinchee points out that 19 customer chairs have been added to the front of the store for those weary from Christmas shopping.

The store has also installed six new "quick service stations" with clerks in attendance at all times.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—She just couldn't understand it, his mother told Patrolman E. H. Melson, men kept calling up and asking: "What is a good number today?"

On the advice of her policeman son, she asked the next caller what number he was trying to get. It was one digit removed from hers. Police checked the number and went to the address listed for it.

Officers said they found 21 numbers slips in the man's house. He was charged with possession of gambling paraphernalia.

Attack Launched Here On Traffic Accidents

"Back the Attack on Traffic Accidents" is the theme of 500 bumper - stickers to be distributed by nine insurance agencies here next week, with the cooperation of the National Safety Council.

City Manager James F. Parkinson has proclaimed the week beginning Dec. 1, 1957, as "Back the Attack Week" as a boost to the traffic safety campaign. The stickers will be available free to anyone who wants them.

The joint effort is being launched "as another measure in a full-scale campaign on our part for the prevention of auto accidents," Robert Jefferson, president of the Fayette County Insurance Assn., commented.

He said that law officers from the city, the county and the state have offered the "fullest cooperation" in the venture.

* * *

THE SIGNS were purchased by the insurance association from the safety council. They will be given free to anyone who asks for them at the insurance agency offices of Jefferson in Bloomingburg, Mac Dews, Leonard Korn, Tom Mark, Max Morrow, Sam Parrett, Paul Pennington, Richard R. Willis and Robert Lewis in Washington C. H.

Parkinson's proclamation calls on "all of our citizens" to exert every effort "to greatly reduce traffic accidents, thus making our community a safer and happier place in which to live."

Text of the proclamation follows:

Whereas, the number of traffic accidents on our streets and highways continues to increase at an alarming rate, and

Whereas, the loss of life and property and the number of personal injuries resulting from traffic accidents has reached staggering proportions, and

Whereas, the National Safety Council has recently launched a campaign to "Back The Attack on Traffic Accidents," and reduce this needless loss of life and property;

Now Therefore, as Manager of the City of Washington, I hereby proclaim the week beginning December 1st, 1957, as "BACK THE ATTACK WEEK," and urge all of our citizens to cooperate fully with our law enforcement officers, and to exert every personal effort to greatly reduce traffic accidents, thus making our community a safer and happier place in which to live.

Signed this 27th day of November, 1957;

J. F. PARKINSON
City Manager

Business Notes

A remodeling project on the front windows of the G. C. Murphy Store has been completed according to Manager Russ Hinchee.

Seven new "See - Thru" windows have been installed leaving only three old style display windows.

No immediate plans are contemplated for changing the three other windows.

Hinchee points out that 19 customer chairs have been added to the front of the store for those weary from Christmas shopping.

The store has also installed six new "quick service stations" with clerks in attendance at all times.

Wrong Number

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—She just couldn't understand it, his mother told Patrolman E. H. Melson, men kept calling up and asking: "What is a good number today?"

On the advice of her policeman son, she asked the next caller what number he was trying to get. It was one digit removed from hers. Police checked the number and went to the address listed for it.

Officers said they found 21 numbers slips in the man's house. He was charged with possession of gambling paraphernalia.

SHOP TALK

By SHARON

While the aroma of Thanksgiving turkey is still in the air, it perhaps seems premature to let thoughts dwell on plans for Christmas.

However, the kitchen calendar will clearly indicate that the 27 days remaining until the Yule are not too many...considering the happy bustle which always accompanies the holidays.

It has been this writer's unhappy experience in the past to concentrate on gift selection.... menu planning....festive wardrobe....and leave the home decoration tricks until the last moment when stocks are depleted and energy and imagination are at a low ebb.

Therefore, this year we started our decorating pilgrimage early and it has proved most rewarding. We feel our home, as a setting for the warmth and gayety of this most glorious season, will ultimately reflect the thought and preparation given it.

* * *

IN OUR TRAVELS about the shops and stores, we stumbled upon some kind of a minor miracle. Exquisite Christmas centerpieces and wall decorations can be found in one shop.... marked down one - fourth from their normal retail price! This is truly phenomenal when we are but entering the season.

The shop frankly admits that this merchandise is a carry-over from last year, but these pieces are not bedraggled and shopworn. While we admire the business ethics which are indicated by these markdowns.....we are more than delighted to take advantage of the savings offered.

For the many, like the writer, who find it difficult to think of Christmas this early, even when you know it is the way of wisdom; we suggest a visit to the local store which now has a fabulous display of unique and unusual Christmas displays for your home. We were particularly delighted with a glittering merry-go-round about 12" in diameter which is mounted on a revolving music box.

This fascinating creation gaily tingles "Jingle Bells."

It sells for $12.98, which is a small price when it is considered it can be the focal point of your Christmas home decorations for many years.

* * *

AT ANOTHER STORE, we found several answers to a pretty Yuletide table. Cotton table cloths of cheerful Christmas motif, reasonably priced and in many sizes. We selected for ourselves immediately a runner 24" by 72" which can be used alone or over ry of your damask cloths for more formal seasonal dinners or buffets.

Our decision to purchase immediately was influenced greatly by the fact that these runners sell for the mere pocket money —a dollar.

We are seriously thinking of doubling back for a few more as they would make delightful bridge prizes or grabbag gifts.

In another department of this same store, 9x12" squares of felt are available in a tremendous range of colors at 19 cents each. We mention this for our many clever friends who every season fashion unusual gifts and decorations out of bits of felt.

For the traditional Christmas table, one shop offers, centerpieces of either artificial holly or poinsettias. These can serve alone as centerpieces or balls and figurines may be added to express one' sindividuality.

They are beautifully made and should serve for many seasons. They are priced at $3.98.

* * *

IT WAS GRATIFYING to find that locally many new materials are offered for home decoration . . .presuming one has the time and the talent to fashion original decorations.

The item which suggested a myriad of uses to this writer was the glitter material in silver, gold or pink which is 36" wide and sells for 98 cents a yard.

We envisioned it draped over an archway...as a tree skirt...as a truly gorgeous buffet covering. It truly inspires ideas and can be adaptable to so many uses.

Our next item is one which is usually left until Christmas Eve and is accompanied by a frantic dash. On everyone's Christmas list, there are usually a couple of names marked by a question mark. "Are we or are we not going to exchange gifts?"

A local store with the cooperation of Tussy can solve your problem now. For $1.50 you can purchase lovely tree ornaments of blue or gold styrofoam. They are available in either star or heart shape and each hugs a vial of perfume.

Purchased now, they will be waiting on your Christmas tree for that Christmas caller who may or may not come.

A Day For Our Thanks and Rededication

Once again the people of Fayette County find that one of the most meaningful and most important holidays of the year is with them— Thanksgiving Day.

This occasion is a religious day, yet it is not individually representative of any one church, creed, sect or denomination.

From those early days of the Pilgrims, when thanks to God were offered for the county of a harvest in a new land in which hardships were not easily overcome, when despair at times was overriden by an abiding faith and a zeal for freedom, up to the present day, it has been our custom to mark this day as a special time to count and give thanks for our blessings.

We find ourselves on this Thanksgiving repeating some of the expressions of other years, but the Thanksgiving we experience now is none the less genuine. As we note the inventory of many good fortunes, we find much about which we should rejoice and feel a deep responsibility in the thanks we owe to Providence.

Our nation today, despite world troubles is at peace. Great as may be the problems which confront many people around the world in their struggle for security and for strengthening of guarantees of justice and benefits of freedom, our country here continues as a leader, translating as best it can, its ideals into realities.

It was the third Thanksgiving Day — proclaimed in November of 1623— that the true spirit and meaning of Thanksgiving as we know it, was born.

The communal society, where all things, including both land and produce, were owned by the community, had been eliminated. In this year of 1623 the barren wilderness began to bloom with the incentives of private property and private enterprise. Each family held its OWN land, to develop as the family might decide.

As we celebrate this Thanksgiving Day, let us give a thought to the limitless abundance which can be ours if we but keep faith with the Founding Fathers.

In 1957 we have cause for Thanksgiving for we, in our time, have the power to reject the communal doctrines and provide constitutional protection to the principles of freedom and private enterprise. This Thanksgiving Season finds us with a myriad of blessings for which we should be devoutly thankful and for which we should rededicate ourselves to the high principles upon which this nation was founded.

Year 2057 -- Count Me Absent

By Saul Pett
(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP)—There seems to be a new national anthem titled: "Be kind to Your Scientist Week."

Sub-title: "Befriend your basic research boy or he'll sneak out of the lab and go into the dry goods business."

Now, I realize this new evangelism was born out of pure reverence for knowledge and absolute truth and, of course, has no connection with national panic. Still, I must confess, there are times when a heathen superstition keeps me from being swept off my feet, stops me from kneeling in prayer over the new testament of the test tube.

Almost every time the new faith begins to seize me, something pens: A bunch of scientists get together and paint a futuristic picture of the paradise to come on earth. They did it again just the other day at a meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel observing the centennial of Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Inc. Now, just how much connection there was between the prophecies and the products being celebrated, I can not say and I don't think it would be fair to draw any inferences.

He'll be able to control the size, shape and function of his 5f$i.? Y: TALK H HIS MIND (mental telepathy) instead of his mouth; remove all mental illness and control his emotions and impulses with drops or pills; he'll be able to select the sex of his unborn baby and determine whether he'll have singlets, twins or triplets; if he doesn't want his own baby, he'll be able to shop for and then hatch the sperm and eggs of long-dead people of proven virtue and talent; he'll dine on vegetable dishes and synthetics (since the rest of the animal kingdom will have been consumed by then); he'll vacation at lavish hotels hung in outer space and receive his mail through satellite radio signals.

Except for the fact that they are convinced man in the year 2057 will work only four or eight hours a week, I find the scientists' dream of the future a screaming nightmare.

Verbally or mentally, there will be endless arguments between man and wife 100 years hence.

"Let's go to Mars again. I can get a discount."

"You and your cliche thinking! Mars is overloaded with humans. Let's go to Saturn. It's more chic. Nobody goes there."

Children:

"I'm telling you for the last time, it'll be a boy!"

"That's what you think. Remember, you picked the last one. Anyway, it's already been arranged, we'll have a quiet girl this time. I promised the babysitter."

"I want a boy, a brown-haired boy."

I want not to be there, in the year 2057.

Joe Sokolsky a Delinquent!

By George Sokolsky

My dog, Joe, now is a juvenile delinquent and his amah — or nurse—was summoned to magistrate's court to explain his misconduct.

The offense occurred at 7:45 a. m. The summons was dated Nov. 28, but it should have been dated Nov. 20, which shows that the police are on their toes.

Whether Joe can be held on a charge of a misdemeanor that occurred eight days before the police say it did, I do not know. Perhaps learned counsel should be consulted on the subject. Surely a Supreme Court that is so gentle with offenders, will consider the constitutional rights of a dog to be charged properly for his errors of commission.

What seems to have happened to Joe is that at 7:45 a. m., when only dog-lovers are in the park giving their charges a little breather of so-called fresh air in a grimy and sooty city, he was permitted to take a short turn off the leash, but in the presence of his amah to whose instructions he honestly and swiftly responds with unhuman-like obedience.

Poor Joe! A cop was hiding behind a bush, laying for dogs who might be enjoying a moment of chasing their tails. Fiercely, he turned on the culprit, wrote out a summons, got the date wrong in his excitement and anxiety. And now, the amah will have to go to court and be fined for permitting Joe to move about without a leash, which is clearly against the law.

Actually, Joe was not being looked after by an amah, which is Chinese for anana which is universal for a woman who looks after a child, but by a cook who happens to like a dog.

Why this particular cook did did not get into a hassle with the policeman who got his dates wrong, I do not know. She likes to hassell and can be sharp-tongued.

Also, I am told, Joe did not even bark at the cop, which shocked me, as he barks at everybody, being a loquacious dog with a keen sense of humor and a rejection of the theory of man's superiority.

Incidentally, Joe was named after a certain senator from Wisconsin who was my friend. I received the dog as a gift while the senator was being tried before the world in the hope that men would have a low opinion of him. He is now dead.

There was a time when I used to take Joe out for his morning walk myself, rain or shine, snow or slush. But alas and alack! That has now been forbidden, along with smoking good cigars, eating well-cooked food, and other virtues of life of which I am deprived.

It used to be fun, going out early in the morning. There, on a park bench, slept a lush, his bottle, now empty, lying close to him on the ground.

Some time, during the day, some child will undoubtedly pick up that bottle, perhaps suck the edges for the sweet taste of the beverage or cut its little finger after it smashed the glass. Maybe in due course, the child will become an alcoholic, as the book says.

We used to have kind of a voluntary dog-lovers association. We would talk about this and that and our dogs would scamper about and we always beat the cop to the leash. In fact, we had a system of signals like real criminals, so that whenever a dog-hating cop, in or out of uniform, appeared on the scent, the signal was made known and all dogs were rapidly put on leashes.

Also, we had signals against certain bad dogs; those that bit man or dog; those that could not play like ladies or gentlemen.

I had a favorite squirrel named Peter. Joe knew Peter very wll, and they liked to talk to each other. As Peter got around and knew all and could see all, he must have told Joe plenty.

Peter the squirrel hated certain queer people who gathered in the park for improper purposes and Pete made a noise about them.

He wondered why dogs might not have a little fun in the parks in the early morning and late in the evening, if these funny people were allowed to hold hands there.

Selection of Frames For Child's Glasses

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

You have to use a great deal of care when purchasing glasses for your youngsters.

The eye specialist will make sure that the lenses correct the child's visual difficulties, but it's up to you to help him pick out the proper style of frames.

Children, remember, can be very cruel with their remarks, so you must be certain that the frames of your youngster's glasses are so attractive that they bring admiring comments from his playmates instead of ridicule.

For one thing, don't give a child spectacles that are too large for him for fear that he will outgrow the proper size.

Of course he'll outgrow them in time, just as he outgrows his shoes and clothes. But like many of his toys and clothing, the frames of a child's glasses have an average lifetime of about only a year, anyway.

So I think it's very cruel to make your child look peculiar just to save a few dollars.

The Better Vision Institute, which knows a lot more about style than I do, says that rounded lens shapes are best for little girls. It seems they emphasize the round lines of childhood in a warm feminine way.

For little boys, angular or squared lenses probably are advisable. Even though their faces have not yet developed the angular lines associated with masculinity, such lenses make them look grown - up and attractive.

If your child keeps pulling off his glasses, attach a shoelace the color of his hair to the sidepiece behind the ears and then knot them at the back of his head.

You can do the same thing with little girls, except that I suggest you use a ribbon, instead of a shoelace, and knot it in a big bow.

Children like to do things by themselves. So you can help boost your youngster's morale by permitting him to select his own glass frames from among several which you know are well - suited to him.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

M. B.: My son is constantly bringing food back up into his mouth and then swallowing it again. What causes this?

Answer: This condition is known as rumination. It usually occurs in children, and generally disappears as time goes on.

Auburn Sure To Keep Its Data Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Auburn and Arizona State, the only unbeaten and untied major college football teams this season, already virtually have wrapped up two of the season's statistical championships although each has one more game to play.

Auburn has a defensive record that could be beaten only by an "impossible" combination of events. Arizona State's total offense and scoring rate is so high there's almost no chance of anyone catching the Sun Devils.

Arizona State has a total offense average of 449.2 yards a game and has scored at the rate of 38.9 points a game with a total of 350 in nine games.

Auburn, allowing its opponents 125.9 yards a game overall, 64.7 yards a game by rushing and 3.1 points in scoring 28 points in nine games, hardly is threatened by any team.

Utah's approximate 27 yards a game bulge over Holy Cross in pass offense isn't likely to be changed much by Saturday's games.

Only a total collapse of the Georgia Tech pass defense could drop the Engineers, who have allowed only 35.7 yards a game, below Missouri's 40.3.

In rushing, it's Army with 323.3 yards a game; Mississippi with 322.6 and Colorado with 322.4.

WASHINGTON (AP)—What happens if President Eisenhower should become too disabled to carry out his duties? Would Vice President Nixon become acting president or president? If so, how? There's no agreed-on answer.

The Constitution itself is foggy on this point.

But it's the third time the question has arisen in a little over two years : After Eisenhower's heart attack; after his ileitis operation; and now again after his mild stroke. He himself asked Congress to clear up the fog. But it didn't.

If a president dies, the vice president becomes president. Seven vice presidents have become president that way. If a president is removed from office by Congress, the Constitution says the vice president succeeds him. That hasn't happened yet.

But this is where the Constitution is vague: it says in case of the "inability of a president to discharge the powers and duties of his office, they "shall devolve on the vice president."

But that raises these questions:

1. What is the position of a vice president who acts as president? Does he thus become president, ousting the man who was elected to the job? What if the elected President recovers?

2. Just what is inability to discharge the duties of the presidency? Is there a time limit on how long a disabled president can remain in office before being succeeded by the vice president?

3. Who decides when the President is too disabled to do his job? And who decides when the disability ends and he can resume his office? The President? He couldn't if he were unconscious. The vice president? That might put him in the position of a usurper.

From what Eisenhower has said in public—in 1956 after his heart attack and again the same year after his operation—it might be concluded he would resign if he felt physically unfit for the job. But that's not positive.

He said: "There is going to be no neglect of the duties of the President of the United States; and when I feel I can't carry them on, I won't be there. . . .

"If at any time I have any reason to believe that I am not fit, as I believe myself to be now, I will come before the American public and tell them. . . ."

It might be Eisenhower's intention to quit if he felt unfit. But suppose he was only temporarily unfit, although the unfitness lasted for months in which the whole direction of the government suffered. Suppose he felt sure he would recover and therefore did not step aside for the vice president?

What happens to the presidency and its duties then?

There were two presidents — Garfield and Wilson — who remained in office during periods they were physically unfit for it. In neither case did the people around those presidents let the vice presidents take over.

Garfield, shot by an assassin in 1881, lingered 80 days; Wilson, who collapsed in 1919, remained in office until the end of his term in 1921, although he had been paralyzed on one side.

Those around Garfield and Wilson feared that if their vice presidents took over the presidential duties they would by doing so oust the presidents.

Through his former attorney general, Herbert Brownell, Eisenhower earlier this year asked Congress to propose an amendment to the Constitution making clear once and for all how a vice president should take over presidential duties in cases of disability. As it did before, Congress talked about it and did nothing.

Brownell told Congress: "Unless the President, his Cabinet and his other friends are absolutely certain of his status after the termination of his inability, they will tend to oppose any attempt to declare the existence of inability, viewing such a declaration as equivalent to removing the President from office."

Some constitutional authorities have argued through the years that once a vice president assumes presidential duties, he is president, even though the elected President recovers. This is based on the belief there cannot be two presidents at the same time.

Brownell argued: " presidential disability severe and prolonged enough to warrant the devolution of presidential power on the vice president would create something of a crisis itself."

But suppose a president is unconscious and can't know he's unfit? Who decides the vice president should take over? No one has the answer, at least not an undisputed answer.

Remember How OSU Defense Defeated Iowa in 1954?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ability of the defense to dig in and preserve a lead against rugged opposition is a measure of football success. Ohio State captured the national title in 1954 by repelling late Iowa drives.

The Big Ten meeting was figured to be a close contest when 82,141 spectators moved into the huge stadium at Columbus on Oct. 16.

Iowa halfback Earl Smith got things off to a blazing start in the first period when he intercepted a pass thrown by Ohio's Dave Leggett and rambled 67 yards to a touchdown and a 7-0 Iowa lead.

The Buckeyes evened the count 7-7 before the period ended. They marched 61 yards in 17 plays with halfback Bobby Watkins crashing the final foot for the score. Little Tad Weed, the 145 pound, 5-5 left footed placement specialist, split the uprights on his first chance.

A pass interference penalty on Iowa after a Leggett aerial fell harmlessly in the Hawkeye end zone set OSU in business in the second period. The call moved the Bucks 28 yards to the Iowa four and in two plays Leggett sneaked across. Weed booted again and it was 14-7.

Smith's 75-yard return of a Hubert Bobo punt in the third quarter evened matters for Iowa. Then, from its 36, Ohio State marched for the winning touchdown in 12 plays later in the period. The payoff maneuver was a 13 yard pass from Leggett to end Dick Brubaker. When Leggett fumbled the pass from the center the conversion attempt was lost and State had a 20-14 margin.

Soon, Ohio State proved its championship mettle.

Iowa, with the aid of a successful fourth down gamble on its own 21, marched 76 yards to the Buckeye 11 where State held. The vital play was a third down at the 15 when the Ohio forward wall jarred Quarterback Jerry Reichow who lost four yards recovering his own fumble.

A Day For Our Thanks and Rededication

Once again the people of Fayette County find that one of the most meaningful and most important holidays of the year is with them— Thanksgiving Day.

This occasion is a religious day, yet it is not individually representative of any one church, creed, sect or denomination.

From those early days of the Pilgrims, when thanks to God were offered for the county of a harvest in a new land in which hardships were not easily overcome, when despair at times was overriden by an abiding faith and a zeal for freedom, up to the present day, it has been our custom to mark this day as a special time to count and give thanks for our blessings.

We find ourselves on this Thanksgiving repeating some of the expressions of other years, but the Thanksgiving we experience now is none the less genuine. As we note the inventory of many good fortunes, we find much about which we should rejoice and feel a deep responsibility in the thanks we owe to Providence.

Our nation today, despite world troubles is at peace. Great as may be the problems which confront many people around the world in their struggle for security and for strengthening of guarantees of justice and benefits of freedom, our country here continues as a leader, translating as best it can, its ideals into realities.

It was the third Thanksgiving Day — proclaimed in November of 1623— that the true spirit and meaning of Thanksgiving as we know it, was born.

The communal society, where all things, including both land and produce, were owned by the community, had been eliminated. In this year of 1623 the barren wilderness began to bloom with the incentives of private property and private enterprise. Each family held its OWN land, to develop as the family might decide.

As we celebrate this Thanksgiving Day, let us give a thought to the limitless abundance which can be ours if we but keep faith with the Founding Fathers.

In 1957 we have cause for Thanksgiving for we, in our time, have the power to reject the communal doctrines and provide constitutional protection to the principles of freedom and private enterprise. This Thanksgiving Season finds us with a myriad of blessings for which we should be devoutly thankful and for which we should rededicate ourselves to the high principles upon which this nation was founded.

Year 2057 -- Count Me Absent

By Saul Pett
(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP)—There seems to be a new national anthem titled: "Be kind to Your Scientist Week."

Sub-title: "Befriend your basic research boy or he'll sneak out of the lab and go into the dry goods business."

Now, I realize this new evangelism was born out of pure reverence for knowledge and absolute truth and, of course, has no connection with national panic. Still, I must confess, there are times when a heathen superstition keeps me from being swept off my feet, stops me from kneeling in prayer over the new testament of the test tube.

Almost every time the new faith begins to seize me, something pens: A bunch of scientists get together and paint a futuristic picture of the paradise to come on earth. They did it again just the other day at a meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel observing the centennial of Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Inc. Now, just how much connection there was between the prophecies and the products being celebrated, I can not say and I don't think it would be fair to draw any inferences.

He'll be able to control the size, shape and function of his 5fSi,? Y: TALK H HIS MIND (mental telepathy) instead of his mouth; remove all mental illness and control his emotions and impulses with drops or pills; he'll be able to select the sex of his unborn baby and determine whether he'll have singlets, twins or triplets; if he doesn't want his own baby, he'll be able to shop for and then hatch the sperm and eggs of long-dead people of proven virtue and talent; he'll dine on vegetable dishes and synthetics (since the rest of the animal kingdom will have been consumed by then); he'll vacation at lavish hotels hung in outer space and receive his mail through satellite radio signals.

Except for the fact that they are convinced man in the year 2057 will work only four or eight hours a week, I find the scientists' dream of the future a screaming nightmare.

Verbally or mentally, there will be endless arguments between man and wife 100 years hence.

"Let's go to Mars again. I can get a discount."

"You and your cliche thinking! Mars is overloaded with humans. Let's go to Saturn. It's more chic. Nobody goes there."

Children:

"I'm telling you for the last time, it'll be a boy!"

"That's what you think. Remember, you picked the last one. Anyway, it's already been arranged, we'll have a quiet girl this time. I promised the babysitter."

"I want a boy, a brown-haired boy."

I want not to be there, in the year 2057.

Joe Sokolsky a Delinquent!

By George Sokolsky

My dog, Joe, now is a juvenile delinquent and his amah — or nurse—was summoned to magistrate's court to explain his misconduct.

The offense occurred at 7:45 a. m. The summons was dated Nov. 28, but it should have been dated Nov. 20, which shows that the police are on their toes.

Whether Joe can be held on a charge of a misdemeanor that occurred eight days before the police say it did, I do not know. Perhaps learned counsel should be consulted on the subject. Surely a Supreme Court that is so gentle with offenders, will consider the constitutional rights of a dog to be charged properly for his errors of commission.

What seems to have happened to Joe is that at 7:45 a. m., when only dog-lovers are in the park giving their charges a little breather of so-called fresh air in a grimy and sooty city, he was permitted to take a short turn off the leash, but in the presence of his amah to whose instructions he honestly and swiftly responds with unhuman-like obedience.

Poor Joe! A cop was hiding behind a bush, laying for dogs who might be enjoying a moment of chasing their tails. Fiercely, he turned on the culprit, wrote out a summons, got the date wrong in his excitement and anxiety. And now, the amah will have to go to court and be fined for permitting Joe to move about without a leash, which is clearly against the law.

Actually, Joe was not being looked after by an amah, which is Chinese for anana which is universal for a woman who looks after a child, but by a cook who happens to like a dog.

Why this particular cook did did not get into a hassle with the policeman who got his dates wrong, I do not know. She likes to hassell and can be sharp-tongued.

Also, I am told, Joe did not even bark at the cop, which shocked me, as he barks at everybody, being a loquacious dog with a keen sense of humor and a rejection of the theory of man's superiority.

Incidentally, Joe was named after a certain senator from Wisconsin who was my friend. I received the dog as a gift while the senator was being tried before the world in the hope that men would have a low opinion of him. He is now dead.

There was a time when I used to take Joe out for his morning walk myself, rain or shine, snow or slush. But alas and alack! That has now been forbidden, along with smoking good cigars, eating well-cooked food, and other virtues of life of which I am deprived.

It used to be fun, going out early in the morning. There, on a park bench, slept a lush, his bottle, now empty, lying close to him on the ground.

Some time, during the day, some child will undoubtedly pick up that bottle, perhaps suck the edges for the sweet taste of the beverage or cut its little finger after it smashed the glass. Maybe in due course, the child will become an alcoholic, as the book says.

We used to have kind of a voluntary dog-lovers association. We would talk about this and that and our dogs would scamper about and we always beat the cop to the leash. In fact, we had a system of signals like real criminals, so that whenever a dog-hating cop, in or out of uniform, appeared on the scent, the signal was made known and all dogs were rapidly put on leashes.

Also, we had signals against certain bad dogs; those that bit man or dog; those that could not play like ladies or gentlemen.

I had a favorite squirrel named Peter. Joe knew Peter very wll, and they liked to talk to each other. As Peter got around and knew all and could see all, he must have told Joe plenty.

Peter the squirrel hated certain queer people who gathered in the park for improper purposes and Pete made a noise about them.

He wondered why dogs might not have a little fun in the parks in the early morning and late in the evening, if these funny people were allowed to hold hands there.

Selection of Frames For Child's Glasses

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

You have to use a great deal of care when purchasing glasses for your youngsters.

The eye specialist will make sure that the lenses correct the child's visual difficulties, but it's up to you to help him pick out the proper style of frames.

Children, remember, can be very cruel with their remarks, so you must be certain that the frames of your youngster's glasses are so attractive that they bring admiring comments from his playmates instead of ridicule.

For one thing, don't give a child spectacles that are too large for him for fear that he will outgrow the proper size.

Of course he'll outgrow them in time, just as he outgrows his shoes and clothes. But like many of his toys and clothing, the frames of a child's glasses have an average lifetime of about only a year, anyway.

So I think it's very cruel to make your child look peculiar just to save a few dollars.

The Better Vision Institute, which knows a lot more about style than I do, says that rounded lens shapes are best for little girls. It seems they emphasize the round lines of childhood in a warm feminine way.

For little boys, angular or squared lenses probably are advisable. Even though their faces have not yet developed the angular lines associated with masculinity, such lenses make them look grown - up and attractive.

If your child keeps pulling off his glasses, attach a shoelace the color of his hair to the sidepiece behind the ears and then knot them at the back of his head.

You can do the same thing with little girls, except that I suggest you use a ribbon, instead of a shoelace, and knot it in a big bow.

Children like to do things by themselves. So you can help boost your youngster's morale by permitting him to select his own glass frames from among several which you know are well - suited to him.

Women Scientists Get Roles In Current Big IGY Program

By HELEN D. PRINCE
(For Jane Eads)

The vast international scientific undertaking known as the International Geophysical Year is now in progress.

Since this is a project conducted primarily by physical scientists and since most physical scientists are men, it would seem that the IGY is out of place in an article dealing with women and their interests.

Not so. Women scientists, through their studies of solar activity, are playing an important role in the program.

During the IGY, the physical nature of the earth as a whole—its weather, atmosphere, oceans, glaciers, and even its shape—are being studied. All of these measurements are being considered in relation to what is happening to the earth as it goes through space, circling around the sun.

What happens to the earth depends primarily on what happens on the sun.

In the United States, Dorothy Trotter of the High Altitude Observatory at Boulder, Colo., makes weekly summaries of solar activity for IGY investigators.

Virginia Lincoln at the Bureau of Standards predicts how such solar activity may affect the earth in subsequent days or weeks. At the McMath-Hulbert Observatory, the solar research station of the University of Michigan, Ruth Hedeman and I are conducting investigations in solar-terrestrial relationships in the hope that the cosmic environment of the earth may be more clearly understood.

In other countries, too, women astronomers are concerned with transient solar events. In France, Mme. d'Azambuja organizes the world-wide flare observations. At the Crimean Solar Observatory in the U.S.S.R. it is a woman who keeps track of solar flares and prominences. Perhaps the activity of the sun is matched only by the activity of these women solar astronomers!

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: In answer to the wife who asks if social drinking is risky, possibly leading to addiction, your comments suggest that you are reluctant to tell people to abstain entirely from alcoholic beverages. Why?

Alcohol cannot benefit one physically. If one is weak emotionally, he will not gain strength of character by drinking. And one must be weak indeed if he drinks simply to follow the crowd. The urge to be of-the-same-pattern is understandable in a 15-year-old, but not appropriate to an adult.

If one drinks because of ear of losing friendship or associations otherwise desirable, there is no real basis for such fear. I can testify to that from personal experience.

From 1917, when I entered the Army at age 26, I have refrained from drinking—originally because general orders forbade it.

Since discharge in 1919 I have been active in my profession, which requires dealing with persons from all strata of society. Also I have been active in several fraternal organizations — at least two of which, I regret, have earned reputations for drinking. And I have attended innumerable conventions, parties, etc., where the men, and in recent years the women, I am sorry to say, drank; some getting drunk.

Nevertheless, I have never been embarrassed or snubbed or insulted because of my invariable "No thanks; I don't use it," to all invitations to drink. There's no need to make any excuse or speech about it. A person has a right, that must be recognized, to decide what he will put into his stomach and what he will keep out—be it alcohol, shrimp, asparagus or porterhouse steak.

R. J.

DEAR R. J.: In effect you are asking why I don't preach against the use of alcoholic beverages, when the subject of drinking is introduced. Well, I think that you yourself have supplied the sensible answer, in your concluding statement, to wit:

"A person has a right that must be recognized, to decide what he will put into his stomach and what he will keep out—be it alcohol, shrimp, asparagus or porterhouse steak."

It was in recognition of this right (reasonably exercised) that the 18th Amendment was repealed, thus putting an end to the so-called noble experiment of trying to stamp out destructive drinking by legal force.

The waste of life, health, money and happiness caused by excessive and addictive drinking is a tragedy of mankind that education may eradicate, in time. But it probably won't be soon. However, great strides have been made in this century towards understanding and thereby learning to control a formerly benighted drive towards alcoholic self-destruction.

Into my original remarks, I interjected a bit of education, I hoped, by calling attention to James Lamb Free's book "Just One More" (Coward-McCann publishers),—in which the author talks turkey to the reader about Charlie, a composite picture of the average problem drinker — "who might be your husband, father, brother sweetheart or even you."

He dedicates his book "To all the Charlies, my brothers . . . with affection and with hope that they may receive understanding and help like Julie gave me"—which suggests that Mr. Free is speaking from the heart of personal experience, in laying bare what makes the drinker drink. And in telling how the problem may be conquered, once the drinker's mind is made up.

He also teaches the bedrock truth that nobody—but nobody—can help the drinker stay dry until the drinker himself has decided absolutely that he really wants to stop bending his elbow.

Steel Mills Face Slow Demand Era

NEW YORK (AP)—The steel industry is heading into its slowest demand period since 1954, Iron Age, metalworking weekly, says.

"Steel users," the magazine said, "have set a course of inventory cutting and are sticking to it. They know they are in the driver's seat and are cutting their own costs at the expense of the mills.

"These are hard times for the mills. They are set up to operate on a mass-production basis. It's a strain on their distribution systems when they are forced to handle small orders."

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: In answer to the wife who asks if social drinking is risky, possibly leading to addiction, your comments suggest that you are reluctant to tell people to abstain entirely from alcoholic beverages. Why?

Alcohol cannot benefit one physically. If one is weak emotionally, he will not gain strength of character by drinking. And one must be weak indeed if he drinks simply to follow the crowd. The urge to be of-the-same-pattern is understandable in a 15-year-old, but not appropriate to an adult.

If one drinks because of ear of losing friendship or associations otherwise desirable, there is no real basis for such fear. I can testify to that from personal experience.

From 1917, when I entered the Army at age 26, I have refrained from drinking—originally because general orders forbade it.

Since discharge in 1919 I have been active in my profession, which requires dealing with persons from all strata of society. Also I have been active in several fraternal organizations — at least two of which, I regret, have earned reputations for drinking. And I have attended innumerable conventions, parties, etc., where the men, and in recent years the women, I am sorry to say, drank; some getting drunk.

Nevertheless, I have never been embarrassed or snubbed or insulted because of my invariable "No thanks; I don't use it," to all invitations to drink. There's no need to make any excuse or speech about it. A person has a right, that must be recognized, to decide what he will put into his stomach and what he will keep out—be it alcohol, shrimp, asparagus or porterhouse steak.

R. J.

DEAR R. J.: In effect you are asking why I don't preach against the use of alcoholic beverages, when the subject of drinking is introduced. Well, I think that you yourself have supplied the sensible answer, in your concluding statement, to wit:

"A person has a right that must be recognized, to decide what he will put into his stomach and what he will keep out—be it alcohol, shrimp, asparagus or porterhouse steak."

It was in recognition of this right (reasonably exercised) that the 18th Amendment was repealed, thus putting an end to the so-called noble experiment of trying to stamp out destructive drinking by legal force.

The waste of life, health, money and happiness caused by excessive and addictive drinking is a tragedy of mankind that education may eradicate, in time. But it probably won't be soon. However, great strides have been made in this century towards understanding and thereby learning to control a formerly benighted drive towards alcoholic self-destruction.

Into my original remarks, I interjected a bit of education, I hoped, by calling attention to James Lamb Free's book "Just One More" (Coward-McCann publishers),—in which the author talks turkey to the reader about Charlie, a composite picture of the average problem drinker — "who might be your husband, father, brother sweetheart or even you."

He dedicates his book "To all the Charlies, my brothers . . . with affection and with hope that they may receive understanding and help like Julie gave me"—which suggests that Mr. Free is speaking from the heart of personal experience, in laying bare what makes the drinker drink. And in telling how the problem may be conquered, once the drinker's mind is made up.

He also teaches the bedrock truth that nobody—but nobody—can help the drinker stay dry until the drinker himself has decided absolutely that he really wants to stop bending his elbow.

Steel Mills Face Slow Demand Era

NEW YORK (AP)—The steel industry is heading into its slowest demand period since 1954, Iron Age, metalworking weekly, says.

"Steel users," the magazine said, "have set a course of inventory cutting and are sticking to it. They know they are in the driver's seat and are cutting their own costs at the expense of the mills.

"These are hard times for the mills. They are set up to operate on a mass-production basis. It's a strain on their distribution systems when they are forced to handle small orders."

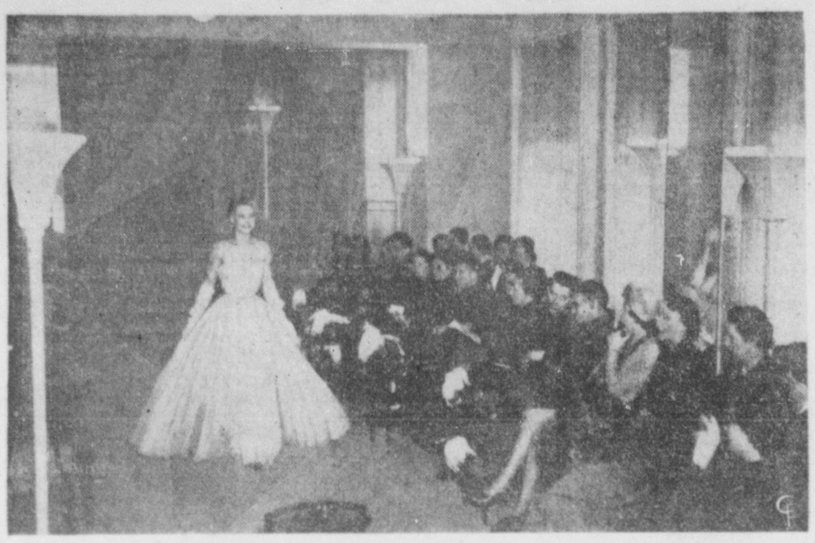
Paris Fashion Spies 'Exclusive'



Model displays one of the latest styles in a Parisian fashion salon. But is there a spy in the house?

By JOSEPH WHITT
Central Press Assn

PARIS—The model, dressed in a latest style gown, steps into the crowded Paris fashion salon, whirls, strided forward, whirls again and poses.

The audience of buyers and reporters applauds. However, somewhere in that audience is a person secretly sketching or photographing this gown. This is the fashion spy in action.

Who and what is a fashion spy?

A couturier's success depends on his original creations. He guards these carefully during every new fashion season, for his income depends not so much on individual sales to private clients as on sales to manufacturers who use his designs for mass producing women's clothing.

* * *

THESE DESIGNS are what the spies steal—without, of course, paying the couturier a franc. The loss to the French fashion industry, according to one estimate, may run as high as a million dollars a year.

To get at these haute couture designs the spies use various methods. One such undercover operator gained admittance to fashion shows by posing as a newspaper reporter. With the aid of a miniature, camera built into her handbag, she photographed the gowns she saw.

Almost before the Paris shows were over, dress manufacturers were being offered the newest creations of Dior, Balenciaga and Givenchy for the comparatively low price of $350.

Because fashions spies disguise themselves as buyers, journalists or photographers in order to enter the shows, the Paris couturiers transform their elegant salons. into security-controlled fortresses.

* * *

TWO CLERKS check everyone entering the fashion house. Manufacturers must be vouched for and pay a deposit.

Members of the press must present personal invitations, which can be obtained only after they have been cleared by their editors and the Chamber Syndicate de La Haute Couture (French couturiers' association).

To circumvent these security precautions the fashion spy often turns up as a model who copies the dress she wears; or a seamstress working in the sewing room among the precious patterns; or an official photographer who sells illegal duplicates.

Behind the spies are the contrefacteurs, the fashion-counter feiting clothing manufacturers. To outsmart their competitors and to avoid paying the couturier's fee, they find it profitable to keep the spies in business.

* * *

BOTH the spies and their customers violate French law, and they are reminded of this on the programs distributed during the fashion shows.

After a fanciful list of new styles —Tour du Monde, Amour, Bonne Fete—appears a warning that photographing and sketching models without authorization is forbidden, and that offenders are liable to fines and imprisonment.

However, the spies—their eyes on easy money—still go on plying their trade among the plush Paris fashion salons.

The B-29 Enola Gay, which dropped an atomic bomb on Hiroshima, was presented to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D. C. on July 3, 1949.

'Our Lady of the Rivers' Statue Recalls 'Miracle'

By GROVER BRINKMAN

PORTAGE DES SIOUX, Mo. River pilots on the Mississippi now have a shining new landmark, both day and night, to chart their course at this historic little French town whose history dates back to 1799.

The landmark has just been unveiled— a snow - white polyester stature of the Virgin Mary. Already the Coast Guard are revising their river charts, to include its location on their navigational maps

Facing mid-river, 550 feet from the Missouri shore, the statue is a guide and an inspiration to the boatmen who ply this great central waterway of mid-American. It has been appropriately named "Our Lady of the Rivers." Behind its erection is the dream of a devout man.

In 1951, torrential rains whipped across the states of Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri, leaving 41 brown dead and a property loss of millions of dollars.

* * *

AS THE FLOOD crept nearer to the little river community of Portage des Sioux, the parish priest, Father Edward B. Schlattmann, pastor of St. Francis church, called upon his entire parish to pray for deliverance.

It seemed only an act of God could save the community.

The priest led the prayers, asking the Blessed Virgin's protection, under the appellative, "Our Lady of the Rivers." The flood crept nearer day by day, and Portage people watched helplessly as the yellow water inched toward their homes.

* * *

HOWEVER they kept up their prayers. Somehow their prayers were answered.

Two weeks later, when the flood crested, Portage des Sioux was a tiny island marooned by a sea of water—damp, hungry, but still unharmed.

The priest was determined in some way to erect a perpetual memorial to the Virgin Mary. A statue in the river? Wonderful—but what would it cost? He was told, after estimates were asked for, that he needed at least $50,000.

The dream might never have been fulfilled but for the death-bed act of a wealthy boatman. He told his friends to omit flowers at his funeral—that instead they donate the money to the statue fund.

* * *

RELIGION has deep roots in this section of the country. In fact, French Catholics had a mission at Portage des Sioux prior to 1799. So it seemed only natural that people of all faiths opened their hearts to the priest of the little French parish, and soon the "Lady of the Rivers" fund was approaching its fulfillment.

The statue itself is something new—made entirely of polyester, a plastic enforced with glass fibers.

This was chosen because dampness, and the buffeting of wind, rain and the river, has no effect upon it.

A Record All Right But Who Wants it?

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — Kenosha has a new claim to fame - more fog signals are blown in the city's port area per year than anywhere in the Great Lakes.

A survey by the ninth Coast Guard District shows that foghorns bellow an average 1,702 hours a year at Kenosha, equal to nearly 2½ months of continuous blowing.

Runner - up was Two Rivers, Wis., with 1,616 hours annually. St. Joseph, Mich., is third with 1,481 hours.

Certainly Not Sons Of 'Frankenstein'

TULSA, (AP)—Gene Welch, manager of the Delman theater, said two boys rode up to the box office on bicycles, shoved a tightly-folded piece of paper through the opening and hurried away.

The paper contained 70 cents in pennies, nickels and dimes. On one side of the paper was a note.

It read: "Dear Delman: My brother and I slipped into the 'Frankenstein'. We are ashamed of ourselves and won't do it again. Here's the money."

The letter wasn't signed.

Comes with House

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — Tabbie, a 10-year-old cat, likes the bright lights. She was left on the farm of relatives when the Swande Hallberg family moved away from Duluth. Tabbie hiked 80 miles back to Duluth. She was taken in by new occupants of the home.

His Record Secure, Bert Quits at 9,125

By JACK AYER

Scheherazade, the sultry siren of the sultan's court, has nothing on Night Watchman Delbert Kearns.

The tawny teller of tales had a mediocre record of 1,001 nights to her credit. The Washington C. H. Watchman has roughly 9,125.

And so, with a spanking good lead on the Eastern beauty, Watchman Kearns has decided to quit.

"Bert," as he is known to the assorted cab drivers, policemen, waitresses and night owls who count him as a friend, has been on the job, every night, seven nights a week, good health and bad, fair weather and foul, since 1932—with a two-week illness in 1941 marking the only interruption.

* * *

"I'M ELIGIBLE for a little pension money now, and it's not as easy to walk as it used to be," Bert said, declaring: "I think I'll just relax for a while."

But close friends are inclined to wonder if the self-effacing watchman will find relaxing relaxing. "He's been at it so long I don't see how he'll be able to quit," one said, commenting: "he's as permanent around here as the Courthouse."

As many as 60 local merchants depended on Bert for night-time protection at the busiest point in his career, around five years ago. Now, Bert has purposely let the number dwindle to 40, but even those remaining testify to his faithful and competent service.

* * *

HIGH COMPLIMENTS for Bert are even forthcoming from as estimable a source as Police Chief D. Valden Long who recalls, among other things, how Bert's steady, unhurried execution of his duties flushed a burglary in a downtown pool room several years ago.

Bert's quick work in notifying the police helped put the burglar behind bars.

A native of Ross County, Bert came here in 1922 and worked for the city street department. He started his night-time activity as an assistant to Frank Roberts and took over the full-time job when Roberts died.

* * *

HE SAID he "wouldn't dare guess" how many miles he has walked, checking doors for his "clients" over the years.

In retirement, Bert will continue to make his home with his sister, Mrs. Iona Knisley, at 438 Highland Ave.

Does he plan to travel? Does a hobby occupy his time? "Well, no—I think I'll just take it easy."

"Yes," he said in answer to a question, "I guess I'll probably find time every so often to take a quiet evening walk."

X-ray Program To Be Continued

Mobile Unit Coming Here in January

Recent news stories and telecasts regarding selective X-ray, following some recommendations made by the United States Public Health Service, caused some people in various communities to gain the impression that mass X-ray surveys might be abandoned, because fear of radiation danger.

In view of the fact that a mass X-ray survey is to be made in Fayette County, Jan. 6 to 16, through the cooperation of the Fayette County Tuberculosis and Health Assn. and the Fayette County Health Department, to determine "suspect" cases, there may have been some people here who gained the impression that the mass X-ray plan might be abandoned.

It will not be, Mrs. George Finley, secretary of the TB and Health Assn., said today.

Use of X-ray for selective finding of tuberculosis cases, is to be continued here and in other parts of Ohio, according to information from the Ohio TB and Health Association officials.

* * *

A STATEMENT from John A. Louis, executive director of the Ohio TB and Health Association, says that "Mobile units, are now being scheduled in areas of high-risk among the general population in order to use available equipment in the most productive areas."

"Use of screening X-rays for finding tuberculosis cases in special high-risk groups is a process already well begun in Ohio," Louis says. "In cooperation with the Ohio Department of Health tuberculosis associations raised the age limits for chest X-rays and withdrew their emphasis on the examination of school children. In rapid succession the Christmas Seal agencies began using their funds to promote X-rays of high risk groups, older aged adults, patients admitted to general hospitals, prison populations, inmates of nursing homes, non-white racial groups, and food handlers."

"Most of the recommendations for selective X-ray surveys have a good start in Ohio at this time," Louis claimed. "Our TB associations have been aware for several years that emphasis on the TB control problem was shifting and we have developed plans to reapply our tools of detection on the basis of greatest need."

The general X-ray survey in Fayette County in January, will be held to individuals 15 years of age and older.

Russia's Sputniks Weaken American Prestige, Solon Holds

By HOYT McAFEE

ALAMOGORDO, N. M.—"Russia's Sputnik I and Sputnik II have weakened America's world prestige and dealt her a hard body blow in a propaganda sense. Why try to deny that—in Madison avenue slick phrases—or pretend otherwise?"

That is the reaction of United States Sen. Clinton Anderson, as expressed to this reporter during his current tour of rocket and guided missile projects in his home state of New Mexico.

Senator Anderson

Perhaps no public official has a greater store of inside information on America's atomic energy and guided missile programs than Senator Anderson, and, he believes in plain talk. . . in realistic action.

As he phrases it, "Wishful thinking won't enable us to overtake Russia's scientific advances, as evidenced by satellites Sputnik I and Sputnik II. Hard work, more intelligent direction, elimination of inter-service rivalries, more incentive and pay for our top scientists — those are a few of the vital requisites if we're to outstrip Russia, scientifically."

* * *

"I WOULD emphasize this point," the senator says. "We must move forward in a spirit of quiet and inspired determination, with no trace of smugness or hysteria If Sputnik I and Sputnik II succeed in waking up those sleepy heads in the Pentagon, that, alone, will be a tremendous public service!"

At rocket and guided missile Sen. Anderson kept hammering away at this theme:

"These are now America's first line of defense. They have replaced Alaska, the Atlantic ocean, and all other imaginary boundaries in that respect. Here at Holloman Air Development Center (Alamogordo), at Ft. Bill in Texas, and elsewhere in the Southwest our scientific brains must function with creative power. With an inspired flair.

"I'm confident that their solid achievements will presently gain a pre-eminence for America in scientific development."

* * *

SEN. ANDERSON'S tour at such a crucial moment in America's scientific race with Russia created special attention and interest.

Government scientists, Army and Air Force experts on rockets and guided missiles, and newspapers regard him as one of the best informed men in the United States on what this country has achieved in the scientific field; and how it stacks up in competition with Russia.

In all his addresses, in his numerous off-the-cuff comments, this reporter observed no alarm on the part of Sen. Anderson. He met issues and harsh realities candidly, making no attempt to pooh-pooh or minimize Russia's spectacular scientific victory—"in the first round."

* * *

HOWEVER, that, he made it clear, should place no dent in our confidence of eventual victory over all rivals on all scientific fronts. It should, to the contrary, rouse us to a fighting pitch—with all our energies and scientific know-how poured into the effort.

There were, concededly, some long faces and grim expressions at the various rocket and guided missile bases visited by Senator Anderson.

His plain talk, air of quiet confidence, and enlightened reassurance did much to dispel some of this gloom.

By FRANKLIN JOHNSON
Central Press Assn.

SAN FRANCISCO — Antarctica, the nethermost part of the globe, is hardly more than 60 hours, away from almost any point in the United States.

This latest earth-shrinking exercise was done by the first commercial flight to "the bottom of the world," which took off from here at 10:30 a. m. on a Saturday morning and arrived two days later in 15 degrees-below-zero temperature on a 6,000-foot ice runway at the United States naval air facility at McMurdo sound, only 850 miles from the South Pole.

You cannot yet buy a routine ticket for such a trip, but the 37 passengers of the epochal first flight who assembled here from "points east," and included civilian technicians along with officers and men of the Antarctic Mobile Construction Battalion (Sea Bees) demonstrated what may become the world's most adventurous one flightway.

* * *

IT WAS ALL part of the International Geophysical Year, and Pan American airways diverted one of its two-level stratocruisers and a crack crew from its Alaska run to make the 9,700-mile flight one of the most routine "firsts" in aviation history.

It is now known when another such flight will be booked, but the stratocruiser, now piles the routes between here and Hawaii, so that it could be scheduled on it at virtually a moment's notice.

The same type of plane has been flying routinely to the Orient for years, and now is one one of the regular Chicago-New York runs.

Capt. Ralph Savory

The passengers on such a flight are made dizzy by the huge area covered and the calendar complications introduced by crossing the international date line "the wrong way," making it seem as though you arrive a day later than actually and return a day early.

* * *

FOUR FUELING stops were made en route. The pioneer flight was in Honolulu by suppertime, and at Canton island in mid-Pacific shortly after midnight.

By breakfast time on the day after departure they put down at Nandi in the Fifi islands, although a whole day had been "lost" by crossing the dateline.

When it was time for their second supper out, the giant plane was landing at Christ-church, New Zealand, and preparations were in full swing to service the ship for its final leg of 2,374 miles to McMurdo, nine and one-half flying hours away.

* * *

FOUR SETS of crews pilot the craft on such a schedule, and on the final hitch Pan Am assigned two men with years of experience flying in Arctic conditions: Capt. Ralph Savory of Seattle chief pilot for the airline in Alaska, who was in command, and Capt. Donald L. McLennan, who piloted Clippers throughout Alaska during the war and made a number of landings on snow-packed runways at Point Barrow, second in command.

Stewardesses Patricia Hepinstall of Holyoke, Colo., and Ruth Kelly, Houston, Tex., were the first women ever to fly into Antarctica and an amazing and delightful sight to the 83 men at McMurdo who hadn't seen a woman in six to 18 months. They broke a record by being closer to the South Pole than any women in history before including some Soviet women who landed earlier in Antarctica by boat.

* * *

AFTER ONLY four hours the big twin-level craft was in the air again, stewardesses and all, but to the men staffing the seven IGY posts the Antarctica of Scott and Amundsen had lost much of its remoteness. Home is now only hours away, not by special aircraft but via routine commercial airliners.

IGY officials point out, however, that the relative novelty of this first commercial flight to Antarctica accentuates the difference between the "top" and the "bottom" of the world insofar as being opened up to the outside world is concerned, because already regular commercial flights have been criss-crossing the North Pole on schedule for several years.

Route 35 Study Report To Be Probed Dec. 5

City Manager James F. Parkinson and William Stoughton, manager of the Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce are planning to attend the Dec. 5 meeting of the Route 35 Assn. in Xenia when a progress report on a study of the highway will be submitted.

Parkinson will attend the meeting as a director. Stoughton will be there as an unofficial observer. Fayette County's other board member, Councilman Walter Morrow, is in Chicago and is not expected to attend. Morrow also is president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Stoughton said he wanted to hear comments on the report, copies of which have been sent the directors. so he can keep the Chamber here informed on plans the association may develop for improvement of the highway.

Speculating on the future, Stoughton said the report probably will be forwarded to the state Highway Department after it has been approved by the board.

The report is made up of a survey of the route from Gallipolis at the southern terminus to west of Dayton, where it leaves the state and enters Indiana. It cites the traffic hazards and makes recommendations for lessening them.

Indications are that the board at its meeting in Xenia will rate the hazards and ask the state Highway Department to eliminate or relieve them in the order of priority placed on them by the board.

For the section of the highway in Fayette County the report says:

"West of Washington C. H.: This section is quite safe with these exceptions: Narrow bridges at 00.19, 01.78 and 08.27 mi., a partially blinded intersection at Allen Rd. (West Lancaster), side road entrances over crests of vertical curves at 10.15, 11.3 and 12.1 miles.

"Washington C. H.: This city has 26 grade crossings, four of them on U. S. 35. One is protected by watchman from 7:00 a. m. to 11:00 p. m. The others are unprotected. Two of the crossings are at sharp turns. Business section is often congested, especially at Court St. (U. S. 22 and 62). Some illegal double parking is practiced, although this is more prevalent on other streets than U. S. 35. The Elm St. corner at the east corporation line is partially blind. This corner has a high volume of intersecting traffic including many school buses.

"East of Washington C. H.: Roadside business creates congestion for half a mile east of the corporation. Vertical curves and long no-passing zones prevail all the way to the Ross County line. In this section are four intersecting roads which are blinded by trees, billboards, etc. An unmarked curve at 17.2 mi. should have a warning sign for westbound traffic."

Similar reports cover all other sections of the highway in seven counties—Fayette Ross, Jackson Gallia Preble, Montgomery and Greene—it crosses.

When the association was first formed, there were hopes that it could be included in the interstate system as a four-lane divided highway, because it is considered the "natural route" from a vast area north and west to the south.

However, when the prospects for this appeared remote, the association started bending its efforts to-ward a general improvement through elimination of curves and hills and widening where necessary.

Bray's Hill, between here and Chillicothe, is considered one of the biggest hazards along the entire route and indications that it will be given a high priority for attention.

MEDINA, Ohio (AP) — "I wasn't as smart as I thought I was," admitted James Sinecek after he was brought to Medina Hospital.

The 66-year-old grandfather said he was trying to "show my grandchildren a thing or two" about bicycle riding. He fell off and broke a leg.

Needed for Emergency?

AIRDRIE, Alta. (AP)—A projector stolen from the Airdrie Public School at Christmas, 1953, was replaced with a $600 projector. Now the original projector has been returned by mail from Vancouver, without any explanation or name of the sender.

Accepts American Name

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — Peder Axel Henry Birger Gillis Gustafson Wege will become an American citizen soon, and he also will shorten his name The Swedish native has decided upon Peder Axel Wege.

Police Car Will Pay

HAMMOND, Ind. (AP)—State police said they would pay a parking fine for one of their patrol cars. They were in such a hurry to make a gambling raid they forgot to put a coin in the meter.

One Dealer May Have $2,750,000 Turnover This Year

Rare Stamps Really 'Big Business'

The one-penny Mauritius.

By LEWIS CRANSTON
Central Press Assn.

LONDON, England—When Henry Revell Harmer was a small boy playing in the London streets he became engrossed in foreign stamps.

He never dreamed that he would one day become the acknowledged authority on stamps in the world; that he would in 1957, through his branch in New York, auction off the fabulous Caspary collection said to be worth $2,800,000.

Split into 16 separate auctions, the sale of the Caspary stamps has resumed, under Bernard Harmer, son of the firm's founder.

In London I interviewed Cyril Harmer who handles the British end of the business from his efficiently run office in Bond street. I must admit that foreign stamps have always been rather a puzzle to me. The hobby never interested me as a small boy.

After I had discussed the matter with Cyril Harmer I gradually formed a new perspective about it. What I had considered to be a puerile hobby is in reality big business.

• • •

"COLLECTORS look upon stamps as a form of life savings," he said. "In quite a few instances where we have sold collections, they have proved to be the major asset in the owner's estate."

He cited the case of an English lawyer who died in 1947 and left nothing of value in his estate except a collection of stamps. These were auctioned for $150,000, thus leaving his relatives with a considerable taxfree inheritance.

New York and London are now the two most important foreign stamp centers in the world, according to Cyril Harmer. Paris used to be prominent as a stamp center, but its importance has diminished since the 25 per cent duty imposed on stamp imports.

Because of its free currency, Switzerland has now become more prominent in the world of stamps. Many collectors in Europe buy their stamps through Switzerland and get them into their countries illegally.

A considerable amount of smuggling in valuable stamps goes on all the time. This is understandable when you consider the size of a stamp and how easy it is to conceal.

• • •

"ONE DEALER," points out Cyril Harmer, "who tried to smuggle valuable stamps out of Britain into the United States was trapped by the British police.

"A search revealed that he had $60,000 worth of stamps in his possession. They were confiscated. The dealer was imprisoned for three years for attempting to earn dollars without Treasury approval.

The prices bid for single stamps is sometimes beyond understanding. Last March, at Harmers in London, a one-penny post office Mauritius, 1847, fetched $12,600. In April, at Harmers in New York, an American paid $20,000 for the Baden 9 kreuzer error of colour stamp, the highest realization obtained in the United States for a single stamp.

• • •

NONE of the Harmers is keen to discuss stamp forgeries.

It is known that Henry Revell is a keen collector of forgeries.

He has one of the finest collections in the world. They are as zealously guarded in his strongroom in London as are the valuable stamps which periodically come up for sale.

Is the market for foreign stamps expanding?

"Undoubtedly", said Cyril Harmer. "Our turnover for the season 1956-1957 which has just ended is a signpost in the right direction. When we publish our figures later this year we expect to show a turnover of $2,750,000—our highest ever."

AF Reserve Outfit Is Self Reliant

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP)—If the 459th Troop Carrier Wing, an Air Force Reserve outfit here, ever needs money or leadership, it can look within its own ranks.

One sergeant heads a million dollar corporation and another has a son who is a full colonel.

CUB PACK 229

Cherry Hill Cub - Scout Pack 229 meeting held Tuesday night in the Farm Bureau auditorium was opened by George Coulthard, cubmaster, who introduced the new district executive, Joe Hutt. Hutt spoke briefly to the Scouts and their parents.

Plans were made to fill a Christmas basket at the next pack meeting which is to be held Dec. 17. Cubmaster Coulthard made arrangements with several of the Cub Scouts to attend the next Court of Honor meeting at the South Side Church of Christ on Dec. 2.

The flags for the largest attendance of Scout parents at the pack meeting was presented to Den 7, led by Mrs. Ivan Kelley and Mrs. Bryan Leasure.

A bake sale auction was held in charge of Walter Coil and George Coulthard. Funds from the sale, amounting to around $20, were collected and placed in the pack treasury.

The meeting closed with Joe Hutt leading the Scouts and their parents in the Lord's Prayer.

Even the Comics Go Into Mike's Scrapbook

COMMERCE, Tex. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. James West have started a scrapbook of newspaper clippings.

They believe that when their baby son, Mike, grows up he'll enjoy reading about what happened since he was born.

The clippings are birth announcements, news of world events, business conditions and baseball scores.

"We've even clipped some of the comic strips," Mrs. West said.

8-County Meeting To Be Here Friday

Stockholders of the Columbus Production Credit Assn. in this eight - county district will gather in the Country Club here at 8 p. m. Friday for their annual meeting.

Topping the agenda for the business session are the election of two directors, a report by the board on the past year's operations and a financial report by the treasurer.

Terms of two directors, Melvin Kennedy of Union County and C. B Lair of Franklin County expire this year. Kennedy, John H. Dunlap Jr. of Pickaway County and Lloyd Whetzel Jr. of Franklin will be submitted by the nominating committee to fill their seats.

The Rev. Sanford Lindsey, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, London, will show slides of pictures he took during his trip through the Middle east last summer and describe the scenes with a running commentary. The Rev. Mr. Lindsey is a former rector of St. Andrew's Church here.

There are around 250 stockholders in Fayette County.

Other counties in the district are Union, Pickaway, Franklin, Madison, Delaware, Licking and Fairfield.

Baldwin Rice, Fayette County representative of the association, made all arrangements for the meeting. He said around 100 stockholders are expected to attend it.

Following the business session, a buffet supper will be served.

One tough problem on the White Mexico, where Army, Navy and Air Force missiles are being tested, is chasing stray cattle back to neighboring ranches where they will be out of danger.

Cottage Has Everything Except a Kitchen

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Back in 1881 Lucky Baldwin, the early California millionaire, built an exquisite Queen Anne Cottage here for his third wife.

The house has stained glass windows brought from Europe. White marble was brought from Vermont and dark marble from Tennessee. The marble fireplaces probably were imported from Italy. The ceilings are 14 feet high and there are fancy chandeliers and tall narrow windows.

The elaborate house seems complete except for one thing. It does not have a kitchen. Food was prepared in a house on the other side of a small lake and transported to the Baldwin cottage by boat.

One Dealer May Have $2,750,000 Turnover This Year

Rare Stamps Really 'Big Business'

The one-penny Mauritius.

By LEWIS CRANSTON
Central Press Assn.

LONDON, England—When Henry Revell Harmer was a small boy playing in the London streets he became engrossed in foreign stamps.

He never dreamed that he would one day become the acknowledged authority on stamps in the world; that he would in 1957, through his branch in New York, auction off the fabulous Caspary collection said to be worth $2,800,000.

Split into 16 separate auctions, the sale of the Caspary stamps has resumed, under Bernard Harmer, son of the firm's founder.

In London I interviewed Cyril Harmer who handles the British end of the business from his efficiently run office in Bond street. I must admit that foreign stamps have always been rather a puzzle to me. The hobby never interested me as a small boy.

After I had discussed the matter with Cyril Harmer I gradually formed a new perspective about it. What I had considered to be a puerile hobby is in reality big business.

• • •

"COLLECTORS look upon stamps as a form of life savings," he said. "In quite a few instances where we have sold collections, they have proved to be the major asset in the owner's estate."

He cited the case of an English lawyer who died in 1947 and left nothing of value in his estate except a collection of stamps. These were auctioned for $150,000, thus leaving his relatives with a considerable taxfree inheritance.

New York and London are now the two most important foreign stamp centers in the world, according to Cyril Harmer. Paris used to be prominent as a stamp center, but its importance has diminished since the 25 per cent duty imposed on stamp imports.

Because of its free currency, Switzerland has now become more prominent in the world of stamps. Many collectors in Europe buy their stamps through Switzerland and get them into their countries illegally.

A considerable amount of smuggling in valuable stamps goes on all the time. This is understandable when you consider the size of a stamp and how easy it is to conceal.

• • •

"ONE DEALER," points out Cyril Harmer, "who tried to smuggle valuable stamps out of Britain into the United States was trapped by the British police.

"A search revealed that he had $60,000 worth of stamps in his possession. They were confiscated. The dealer was imprisoned for three years for attempting to earn dollars without Treasury approval.

The prices bid for single stamps is sometimes beyond understanding. Last March, at Harmers in London, a one-penny post office Mauritius, 1847, fetched $12,600. In April, at Harmers in New York, an American paid $20,000 for the Baden 9 kreuzer error of colour stamp, the highest realization obtained in the United States for a single stamp.

• • •

NONE of the Harmers is keen to discuss stamp forgeries.

It is known that Henry Revell is a keen collector of forgeries.

He has one of the finest collections in the world. They are as zealously guarded in his strongroom in London as are the valuable stamps which periodically come up for sale.

Is the market for foreign stamps expanding?

"Undoubtedly", said Cyril Harmer. "Our turnover for the season 1956-1957 which has just ended is a signpost in the right direction. When we publish our figures later this year we expect to show a turnover of $2,750,000—our highest ever."

Operation Bootstrap Brings Prosperity to Puerto Rico

By JEROME DREYER
Central Press Assn.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico—"We got up onto our feet and accomplished in 10 years what other countries planned to do in 50 years."

This is how a business man here proudly describes the near miraculous economic recovery of this unique commonwealth—the only such self-governing territory under the American flag—in an industrialization and modernization program that has made Puerto Rico a showcase for impoverished nations looking for a "do-it-yourself" way to prosperity.

This place in the sun has been attained through a program aptly named "Operation Bootstrap," now in its 10th year. Put into high gear in 1948 under the leadership of Louis Munoz Marin, Puerto Rico's first popularly-elected governor, the program has joined the best of Yankee push and ingenuity plus Spanish culture and traditions with the result that virtually every phase of the island's economy has been revitalized.

• • •

UNDER "Bootstrap" investment capital is attracted to the island by exempting it from corporate taxes for 10 years. This applies only to new plants. However, Puerto Rico's tax inducements, it is emphasized, are not for the benefit of businesses running away from United States taxes.

As of now, 550 firms are taking advantage of this offer, creating, directly and indirectly, an estimated 75,000 jobs producing a net income of $1 billion yearly.

So startling has been this recovery, undeveloped countries are sending technicians and students here to see how it is being done. At present there are almost 3,000 observers from almost 100 countries.

These observers have been impressed by the fact that the time-honored and traditional manana of the tropics has been replaced by the phrase, Hay que moverse! which, roughly translated, means "You have to keep moving!" As a result—the island is hustling along at a pace not duplicated by another country except, perhaps, Israel.

• • •

FROM one end of the island to the other, from the bustling Avenida Ponce de Leon, San Juan's auto and bus-filled main street, to the countryside, lush with palm trees and tropical blooms. Puerto Ricans are too busy rebuilding their island to observe the former custom of putting off until tomorrow what they don't feel like doing today.

This boom has brought new roads, schools, hospitals—even oil refineries to free the Caribbean island from dependence on the mainland.

• • •

THAT "Bootstrap" has succeeded in hitting its goal is attested to by this summer's marking the first time in the island's history that income from industry was greater than that derived from agriculture, which was concentrated in one crop—sugar.

One offshot of this prosperity is that the tide of emigration is being reduced. Now United States-trained Puerto Ricans are returning to take factory jobs in their homeland.

They are discovering that many formerly prevalent diseases have disappeared, so that life expectancy is up to 68 years from 46; that under a slum clearance plan they can build, with government help, a small, modern house for about $400, paying $3 to $5 a month toward the purchase price; that new schools have cut illiteracy to 20 per cent, and that an influx of tourists this year found 200,000 visitors spending $30 million.

This is Puerto Rico today—2,500,000 dedicated people with one goal: a better way of life.

People . . . Places . . and Things

Round about Fayette County

By B. E. KELLEY

If the early settlers in Fayette County, who celebrated Thanksgiving in the most primitive manner, could have looked ahead upward of 150 years to the Fayette County of today, they would have thought the wilderness as they knew it had been transformed into a veritable paradise.

And come to think of it, they would have been correct, for there are few communities which surpass this one as one of the chosen spots of the earth.

For the early Thanksgiving celebrations in Fayette County, the long rifle was used to bring down wild turkeys which furnished meat for the Thanksgiving table—usually made of rough puncheon slabs with legs stuck through auger holes and "chairs" to match. Corn bread beans, hominy and wild berry jelly probably completed the Thanksgiving meal.

Most of those pioneers in the wilderness were God-fearing people, who reverently turned to the Supreme Being to give thanks for the meager things which kept body and soul together.

They had little (in worldly goods) to be thankful for, but their faith magnified these few things into something wonderful and really worthwhile.

Today we probably take too much for granted and overlook the great blessings which have been showered upon us throughout the year—and, in fact, most of our lives.

* * *

STREAMS ARE CLEAR

Although the streams in Fayette County are now flowing normally or above, the water is almost crystal clear.

This shows that no silt or topsoil is being carried downstream, other than the fine silt on the bottom of the creeks which moves very slowly when flow is near normal.

Following the recent rains when the streams carried much more water than at present. The water was muddy, indicating that the quick run-off following the rains carried away much topsoil, which is the fertile soil.

It is when the creeks are at flood stage that huge quantities of topsoil are lost to the owners forever.

Careful checks made by conservationists disclose that a tremendous amount of fertile soil is carried in the average stream during high waters.

Normally most of the water coming into the creeks in the county is from tile ditches, and comparatively little soil reaches the open streams through such tile drains.

REAL PUMPKIN PIE

This is the time of year when most people like pumpkin pie, and for many years this delicacy was just as much a part of the Thanksgiving dinner as turkey.

Then some good soul made the wonderful discovery that pumpkin pie was just as good during all other times of the year as on Thanksgiveng Day or during the late fall season.

But unfortunately not everyone who bakes pumpkin pies glorifies them with enough seasoning to make them stand apart as something really delicious and to be repeated whenever something good to eat is wanted.

And then comes the average pumpkin pie seasoned with ginger or possibly some nutmeg, or even a little cinnamon.

But for me— a real, honest-to-goodness pumpkin pie is made with plenty of allspice and cinnamon.

This method of making pumpkin pies lifts them from the commonplace to something that would please the palate of a potentate.

BIG GAME HEADS

Those who are not familiar with big game may obtain a close-up view of the heads of five different types on display in the lobby of the Cherry Hotel.

These mounted trophies of the hunt have adorned the walls of the lobby for a great many years, and still attract much attention

One of these is the head of an elk, and another is that of a moose, both having a wonderful display of anthlers, and both, according to Sam Evans, porter at the hotel for 48 years, were sold or given to Howard Griffis, former proprietor of the Cherry, by the late Sheriff W. H. Icenhower. The latter had killed the elk and moose in Canada.

Another interesting trophy is the antlered head of a red deer killed in northern Michigan and a small trophy of a southern deer, both of these having been given to the hotel proprietor by Ward Clement, who lived at the Cherry for a number of years.

The third deer head is from Pennsylvania, and the animal was killed while Proprietor Griffis and Elmer A. Klever were on a hunting trip.

The smallest deer head has been on display for 30 years or more and the other trophies around 25 years.

THE COSTUME LOOK is done in tones of olive green and black herringbone tweed for a dress and jacket by Nettie Rosenstein. Black silk braid borders the jacket and three pocket flaps.

Gift Proves Costly

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Paul Johns, Jr., 43, has five years to think about what he claimed was a friend's gift of seeds for spring planting.

Judge F. J. Wilson sentenced him for possessing marijuana.

The town of Clayton, New Mexico (pop. 3,800) owns a municipal buffalo herd. It attracts tourists. Before the Spanish introduced the horse to them, Indians on the western plains had only two domesticated animals—the turkey and the dog.

Corporations Breathe Easy On Tax Ruling

Looking Up Expense Accounts for Last 10 Months Bypassed

NEW YORK (AP) — Harassed corporation treasurers are breathing easier today now that they won't have to look up everyone's expense accounts for 10 months back.

But the Internal Revenue Service still intends to take a close look at big accounts it might find unreasonable. And starting five weeks from today it will insist on seeing even the smallest and most ordinary ones.

It also plans to give closer scrutiny to the prizes and awards that the boss may give for achievements, such as winning sales contests.

Protests from businessmen and their employes that past expense accounts had been filed at the corporate treasurer's office and forgotten led the Internal Revenue Service to reverse an earlier order that detailed reports on them be filed with the 1957 income tax return.

But with the reversal came the stern warning that "the long standing rules which the revenue service has been following with respect to substantiation of deductions when a taxpayer's return is audited" still stand — and the service is getting tougher about them.

Tax agents in the field have been instructed to watch for omission of big expense accounts and for questionable entries on the 1957 returns.

Starting January 1, Moreover, all employes whose expenses for the firm are paid by the boss must report the total on page one of the 1958 tax return and attach an accounting of what the money was spent for.

The service's directive to agents calls for "a close look at expense deductions claimed involving such items as club dues, entertainment, travel, maintenance of automobiles." And it frowns on "purported business trips by executives vacationing at resort hotels, expenses of hunting trips, expenses of attendance at sporting events in distant cities . . . under the guise of necessary business trips."

Close attention is also asked to "the use of alleged branch offices established in resort cities for the sole purpose of sending business executives to such cities for vacations."

The Internal Revenue Service's rules call for inclusion as gross income "any prizes and awards from an employer to an employe in recognition of some achievement in connection with his employment."

It holds that if the prize is in goods or services, such as trips, "the fair market value of the goods or services is the amount to be included in income."

Some tax consultants have been telling their clients that if a trip won in a sales contest includes some business activities or meetings it doesn't fall under this rule but becomes a business trip.

Since none of the money spent for the trip passed through the employe's hands, they argue, there is no expense account to report either.

But the Internal Revenue Service has told its agents to scan very closely such claims in deciding if the trip is a business activity or a prize junket.

In business circles there has been considerable outcry against reporting as individual income money that just passed through an employe's hands while paying expenses in the boss's name. But the service seems determined to tighten up enforcement all along the line.

Mamie Labeled 'Courageous' For Her Attitude about Ike

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the third time in 26 months, Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower is watching over a sick husband.

Vice President Nixon described as "courageous" her action Monday night in attending a state dinner for King Mohammed V of Morocco, after President Eisenhower had suffered a mild stroke.

"I sat by her and I know under what stress she was," Nixon said, "It was perhaps the most difficult time she has ever had."

But Tuesday night, Mrs. Eisenhower joined the ailing President in dining from trays and watching television for a couple of hours in their White House living quarters.

In advance of the Monday night dinner, the White House had announced only that Eisenhower had suffered "a chill." But it was disclosed Tuesday that tentative diagnosis already had been made of a blockage of a small brain artery—commonly called a little stroke.

During Eisenhower' previous illnesses—a heart attack in Denver in September 1955 and an ileitis operation in June 1956—Mrs. Eisenhower took a room in the hospital to be near the President, and remained with him through convalescence.

She herself underwent an operation last August, remaining in Walter Reed Army Hospital here for 25 days.

How closely she will stay with the President in the White House apparently depends on how rapidly he recovers. Some scheduled events already have been canceled or postponed.

Ohio Unemployment Chieftain Not Alarmed by Idle Totals

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. C. William O'Neill has been told that Ohio's unemployment situation—75,000 persons are now receiving jobless benefits—is not serious in comparison with the national average.

James R. Tichenor, head of the state Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, told the governor at a cabinet meeting that Ohio's increase in benefit claims has shown a recent increase of only 3 per cent against a 4 per cent national average.

The 75,000 unemployment total compares with an average of slightly fewer than 33,000 during November 1956.

Tichenor said the additional claims created a need for 350 clerks and typists in BUC offices throughout Ohio, but he had been able to hire only 60.

He pointed out that so far this year the employment service branch of the BUC has been able to place 388,660 Ohioans in jobs.

Tichenor also reported there has been a recent decline in unemployment in the Athens-Nelsonville and Lima areas. Half of last week's unemployment increase was in the Canton, Cleveland and Columbus areas, he reported.

Reporting on the state's huge highway program, O'Neill said the total of construction contracts this year has topped the 193-million-dollar mark. With two more big lettings scheduled before the end of the year, he added, the total probably will pass 250 million.

Dr. Ralph E. Dwork, state health director, reported the influenza picture in Ohio has stabilized with no significant increase or decrease in the number of cases reported.

"We are doing better than we had hoped," Dr. Dwork reported. He said Ohio has an ample supply of vaccine.

Oakland Symphony Conductor Dies

A native of Shelby, Ohio, Dr See attended Denison University.

He then taught music and played the violin in a number of orchestras, including the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra under Leopold Stokowski, before coming west to join the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra.

Dr. See founded the Oakland Orchestra 24 years ago and was its conductor from its inception.

Ohio Farm Bureau OKs 8 Trustees

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Farm Bureau Federation elected two new trustees Wednesday and re-elected six others.

Reelected were Mrs. Jay Lawrence of Coshocton, Arnold Keller of Elyria, Rowland Bishop of Milford Center, Wendell Weller of Urbana, Jim Lewis of Hamilton and Oscar Burton of South Webster.

How closely she will stay with the President in the White House apparently depends on how rapidly he recovers. Some scheduled events already have been canceled or postponed.

Ohio Unemployment Chieftain Not Alarmed by Idle Totals

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. C. William O'Neill has been told that Ohio's unemployment situation—75,000 persons are now receiving jobless benefits—is not serious in comparison with the national average.

James R. Tichenor, head of the state Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, told the governor at a cabinet meeting that Ohio's increase in benefit claims has shown a recent increase of only 3 per cent against a 4 per cent national average.

The 75,000 unemployment total compares with an average of slightly fewer than 33,000 during November 1956.

Tichenor said the additional claims created a need for 350 clerks and typists in BUC offices throughout Ohio, but he had been able to hire only 60.

He pointed out that so far this year the employment service branch of the BUC has been able to place 388,660 Ohioans in jobs.

Tichenor also reported there has been a recent decline in unemployment in the Athens-Nelsonville and Lima areas. Half of last week's unemployment increase was in the Canton, Cleveland and Columbus areas, he reported.

Reporting on the state's huge highway program, O'Neill said the total of construction contracts this year has topped the 193-million-dollar mark. With two more big lettings scheduled before the end of the year, he added, the total probably will pass 250 million.

Dr. Ralph E. Dwork, state health director, reported the influenza picture in Ohio has stabilized with no significant increase or decrease in the number of cases reported.

"We are doing better than we had hoped," Dr. Dwork reported. He said Ohio has an ample supply of vaccine.

Oakland Symphony Conductor Dies

A native of Shelby, Ohio, Dr See attended Denison University.

He then taught music and played the violin in a number of orchestras, including the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra under Leopold Stokowski, before coming west to join the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra.

Dr. See founded the Oakland Orchestra 24 years ago and was its conductor from its inception.

Court Action Seen Speeding State Building

High Tribunal Tells Secretary of State To Sell Buckeye Bonds

COLUMBUS (AP) — The Ohio Supreme Court's decision approving the validity of the $150 million bond issue approved by voters for new hospitals and prisons is expected to speed the building program.

Secretary of State Ted Brown was instructed in the court's decision to sign a $1 million note to the State Sinking Fund Commission for the building program.

Bond counsel said court approval was necessary to make the bonds marketable because of an apparent inadequacy of ballots used by voters in approving the bond issue in 1955.

Attorneys in the mandamus action said a summary of the amendment failed to say that bonds would be retired from other state revenues if an extra penny-a-pack tax on cigarettes proved insufficient. The penny cigarette tax has yielded about a million dollars a month.

The money goes into a capital improvement retirement fund to pay off bonds and notes. The Supreme Court said in its decision that Brown is required to sign the note "for the reason that a contest of election is the specific and exclusive remedy provided for the correction of errors, fraud and mistakes occurring in an election."

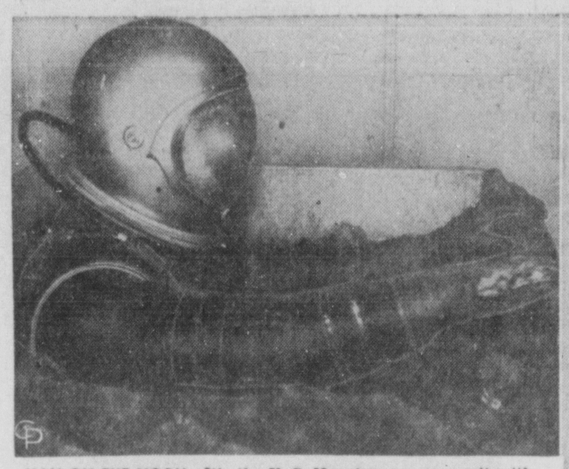
Three of the judges voting to uphold the validity of the amendment said it was valid for an additional reason. They said the condensed text of the amendment printed on the ballot was not misleading or susceptible to misunderstanding . . . because the full text was published for five weeks in every county of the state preceding the election.

The court decision cleared the way for the Sinking Fund Commission to sell 25 million dollars worth of construction bonds next Dec. 4. Required advertising for the bond sale was made in anticipation of a favorable court decision.

Commissioners said they also plan to issue an additional five million dollars worth of notes this year. That would meet the 30-million-dollar a year limit on bonds and notes that can be issued under the 150-million-dollar program.

The commission last year issued 25 million dollars worth of notes to get the building program started. So far, six and a quarter million dollars worth of the two per cent notes held by the state have been retired. Another six and a quarter million dollar payment will be made Dec. 28, officials said.

They said the bond retirement fund now has a balance of $14,254,000 and expects to receive an additional million dollars more within the next 30 days.



MAN ON THE MOON—It's the U. S. Navy's new space suit with "sealed in" atmosphere, for keeping a man alive on the airless moon (if, as and when). It can sustain a man in a complete vacuum for hours, Navy says. Here tester Richard J. McGowan climbs out of a tank of freezing brine into temperature of minus 40 degrees F. at the Philadelphia Naval base. He was in the brine 45 minutes. The suit has been tested at 100 feet under water, and at a simulated 80,000 feet up. (International)

Cabinet Aide Warns Nation Of Austerity

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, speaking for ailing President Eisenhower, urged the nation Tuesday night to accept the "austerity and privations" required to give military and economic aid to other countries of the free world.

Mitchell digressed from a prepared speech of his own to deliver the gist of the "chins up" talk that Eisenhower had planned to broadcast from Cleveland.

The main topic of the Cleveland talk, canceled because of the President's illness, was the importance of international cooperation in halting Soviet imperialism.

He listed three specific points that the President had intended to make in the Cleveland speech. They were:

1. The Eisenhower administration believes the people of the United States owe full support to the mutual security program in both its military and economic phases.

2. Eisenhower will recommend to Congress in January that the expiring Trade Agreements Act be broadened and be extended for a period longer than the present three-year term. The proposal would provide for broader authority for the negotiation of reciprocal trade pacts.

3. A call for United States participation in the Organization for Trade Corporation. Mitchell described the agency as "a business-like unit" to guarantee maximum benefits from the negotiation of trade agreements.

Ike's Illness Said of Type Many Would Not Recognize

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The type of illness President Eisenhower has might go unrecognized by many persons not under constant medical supervision, doctors of the National Heart Institute said today.

All present evidence as announced in White House bulletins indicates, they said, that Eisenhower had a "little" stroke—as distinguished from a "big" one.

"A 'little' stroke," they said, "is of sufficiently mild and transitory nature that many persons having such an attack might not recognize it as an illness or would pass it off as a transient feeling of not feeling too well."

A "stroke" — little or big — is a damage of nerve function. The damage results from impairment of blood flow to particular areas of the brain. The severity of nerve depends upon the location and size of the blood vessel involved—and the nerve centers it feeds.

Formal White House medical bulletins have not used the word "stroke."

The President's personal physician, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder told reporters today:

"There is no doctor up to this time who can tell you it's a stroke."

The NHI doctors said that a "stroke" — little or big — could directly result from the following mechanisms:

1. Thrombosis — that is, clot formation in an artery of the brain.

2. Embolism — Blocking of a brain blood vessel by a clot floating in the blood stream and originating from another part of the body.

3. Spasm — A tightening or closing down of the walls of an artery in the brain.

4. Hemorrhage due to rupture of a brain blood vessel.

5. Compression on a brain blood vessel due to a tumor, swollen brain tissue, or a large clot inside a blood vessel that presses against a nearby vessel.

Sharp-Eyed Widow 'Shoots' Her Way Through College

By HOYT McAFEE
Central Press Assn.

TEMPLE, Ariz.—Yippee, pardner, and long live the wild and woolly west! At least some of the two-fisted action, ruggedness, and derring-do of the Old West survive through the spirit of Mrs. Betty Jean (Beebee) Mouton, a coed at Arizona State college. She wants to be a lawyer; and this spunky, auburn-haired, 23-year-old widow plunges full speed ahead toward achieving her goal.

Even the lack of adequate funds for her books, tuition and other fees doesn't haunt her. No one, mind you, sponsors her.

No one chips in with $100 or $200 for her use. Simply, when the need arises for do-re-mi Betty Jean takes leave of her college classes and sets forth for mountain lion country.

Dressed and armed suitably for the occasion, she moves in on the object of her quest in his habitat. Some simply call him the mountain lion. To others he's known as a catamount, panther, puma and cougar. Under any name, Betty Jean can testify, he proves a tough customer to deal with.

• • •

EVEN THOUGH she does her hunting on horseback, she still exercises every precaution in carrying on her pursuit. She calmly waits till the right moment before squeezing the trigger.

Almost always, Betty Jean points out, she brings the mountain lions down with one shot. That necessitates, she further makes clear, hitting the beasts at a vulnerable spot—squarely between the eyes.

After playing the female Daniel in an Arizona lions' den, Betty Jean collects the animal's head and hide. Then she hauls the carcass into Phoenix. There she finds a ready market for her "wares"—a total of $75 per animal (in the form of mountain lion bounty). After a few such trips, and a bit of luck, she has the wherewithal for her college needs—and specifically for her pre-law course.

Born amid the wilds of Arizona's Apache National Forest, Betty Jean—as a young girl—thrived on a "diet" of hunting parties. She, her dad, and other wild game enthusiasts bagged their share of bear, deer, elk, wild turkeys and pumas. At a later stage she performed creditably as a logging truck driver—without letting that chore "toughen" her or rob her of her essential feminine charm.

both in Arizona and Colorado—till she was graduated. And there was another stretch during which she served as hostess in a cocktail lounge.

Betty Jean has been married once. Her husband, an Air Corpsman, set out on an overseas mission. Somewhere along the way his plane vanished—and there has been no trace of him since. She, the widow, and the mother of one child, a daughter, has faced up to his loss courageously.

Ohio's Polio Season Said About Over

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The polio season in Ohio is practically over, Dr. Ralph E. Dwork, state health director, said today as he disclosed only one new polio case was reported last week.

No cases were reported the week before that.

So far this year, 259 polio cases have shown up in state records, compared with 561 for the corresponding period of 1956. During all of last year, 578 polio cases were recorded.

Dr. Dwork said the drop in the number of cases this year bore out earlier predictions of the effectiveness of the Salk anti-polio vaccine. But he warned:

"Polio returns like clockwork and it is important that persons up to the age of 40 get all three polio shots. It is particularly important that youngsters up to the age of 16 who have not had a third shot get it between now and April."

Dr. Dwork said he has no recent figures on how many persons who should have polio shots have not received them. He estimated, however, that only two-thirds of the "eligible population" is covered.

The polio season begins in June and July and reaches its peak early in August.

Florida was once a colony of Spain and Great Britain. It was later ceded to the United States.

One in Every Eight Wears Medal of Some Sort

French World's Most Decorated People

By JOSEPH WHITT
Central Press Assn

PARIS, France—Who is Monsieur Decore?

Mister Decorated is the Frenchman's name for himself, for he has long believed that he wears more insignia of distinction than any other person in the world.

Facts seem to support his view. One Frenchman in eight has been decorated. Official records reveal France has nearly 100 different awards and of these 15 million replicas have been distributed.

The red ribbon or rosette of the Legion of Honor, to cite the most famous French order, adorns 250,000 labels. In founding this order, Napoleon Bonaparte said:

"I defy anyone to show me a republic, ancient or modern, in which there have not been distinctions. The French have only one sentiment: honor. It is necessary to feed this sentiment; it is necessary to give them distinctions."

Since Napoleon spoke these words so many persons have received the Legion of Honor award that it is in danger of losing its prestige.

* * *

AN OWNER of a shop specializing in medals said, "Any Frenchman can get a decoration. All he has to do is submit proof of his merits and petition a freindly government official. He has a good chance of getting it."

The Legion of Honor, however, cannot be held accountable for all the colored ribbons on French chests.

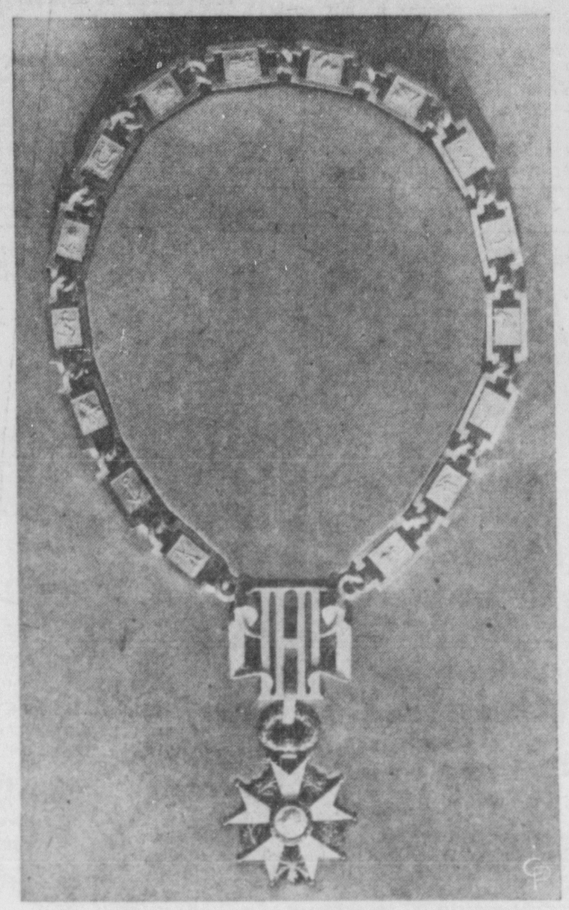
Napoleon II, thinking the legion insufficiently exclusive created the Medaille Militaire. But even this order has bestowed 600,000 medals, helping to place military decorations at the top of the list of French awards.

The fact that five million persons possess the Croix de Guerre and the Croix du Combattant led a veteran of two world wars to say:

* * *

"IT'S A RARE Frenchman, indeed, who can't pin something on his lapel for Sundays and gala occasions. How can the ordinary person tell the difference between a medal for bravery or good conduct?"

Numerous civil decorations add to the endless flow of stars, crosses and ribbons. A million Medailles d'Honneur d. Travail have been given for outstanding work, and 750,000 other work medals have been handed out to firemen, farmers and railroad employes.



This is the most coveted of all French decorations, Le Grand Collier de la Legion d'Honneur—symbol of the famed Legion of Honor, created by Napoleon Bonaparte.

To make sure no one is forgotten the French also bestow medals on writers, actors, policemen, musicians, professors, post office clerks, life savers and physical education instructors.

* * *

A PSYCHOLOGIST, asked to comment on this profusion of awards, said, "The Frenchman has a decoration complex. He has a profound need to be approved by those who command him."

However, a waiter at a cafe may have really had the final word to say on his countrymen, "As long as the tricolor waves, 40 million Frenchmen will dream of the day when they'll receive an imposing document and a small box containing a medal. Monsier Decore will never die."

Old Soldiers Meet After 38 Years

MARIETTA, Ohio (AP)—A social note from nearby Macksburg about a visit by Mr. and Mrs. Adna Collins of Celina, Ohio, to Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Farley, had a footnote.

1,700 Miami Trace Students To Take 'Every Pupil' Tests

Almost 1,700 students of the Miami Trace school system will be taking the Every Pupil tests sponsored by the State Department of Education the first two weeks in December, according to superintendent Walter W. Boyer.

The tests are used in determining the proficiency of educational methods. Norms are established by the state and a school may learn how well its students do in any particular subject.

No tests will be administered to students of the city schools, Superintendent W. A. Smith reports. However, registration will be held next week to determine the number of seniors to take the State Sponsored Senior Test.

Only one Miami Trace high school will use the senior test. Jeffersonville will administer the test to eight seniors.

* * *

THE BLOOMINGBURG schools will give the most tests. It was estimated that 420 students will take an average of three tests each.

Actually, second graders will get only the state test for reading. Third, fourth, fifth and sixth grade students will receive probably four tests covering reading, English and arithmetic.

Specialized tests will be given to students in advanced grades covering such subjects as spelling, vocabulary, plane geometry, algebra, history, world history, American history, government, geography, science, biology, chemistry, Latin and typing.

* * *

NINE elementary schools will give tests, covering reading, English and arithmetic, to all their students. Wilson school will give tests to 185 pupils; Milledgeville to 186; Staunton to 117; Olive to 105; Eber to 162; New Martinsburg to 48; Chaffin to 144; Marion to 96 and Bookwalter to 171.

Wayne school will make limited use of the tests, but is undecided at this time as to the total number to be given.

Occupational Hazards Nag Yule Glamour

By VIVIAN BROWN
By The Associated Press

Every year just before the holidays we become conscious of our glamor quotient.

The salesgirl with tired feet, the nurse with darkly circled eyes, the office girl with hip spread, the housewife with aching back, the model with tired complexion, the school teacher with worn voice, the maid with rough hands all suffer from occupational beauty hazards.

Each must solve her own problem, but time is short. It is only when special events are upon us that we give real thought to finding a prescription for a beauty ill that is, after all, a chronic one.

• • •

YOU CAN'T erase tired feet over night. The plan must be constant to achieve results. A few weeks of routine are needed for your treatment to take effect. You'll be dancing with glee at Christmas time if you start now to soak your feet each night, to exercise your toes by spreading them apart, to tiptoe around the room in bare feet. A good relaxer is to lie down with feet up on a pillow for 15 minutes before a date.

Eye circles may be eased or erased by putting cotton pads soaked with witch hazel on the eyes for a few minutes before going to bed, by patting eye cream around the eyes once a week, by getting more uninterrupted sleep when possible. A good foundation cream at the eyes will help disguise dark circles.

WHAT TO DO about hip spread now that Santa is charting his course? The first perusal of the situation calls for sizing up your present girdle. Does it fit properly? Perhaps it is too high or too low. Does it pull up, bunch up at the middle? A new girdle often can cinch inches off the derriere and abdomen.

Try an exercise for hips, such as the old reliable hip crosses (lie down, arms outstretched, raise your right leg straight up, try to touch your toes to your left hand. Reverse with left leg). A brisk walk, skating and skiing are other good hip reducers.

Relaxation and a hot bath in the afternoon will help ease "housewife back." Exercises that take the "limp" approach are good too. Bend your body from the waist and let your torso, arms and head go limp, wriggle your fingers, shake your head.

The model with a tired complexion needs occasional vacations from heavy makeup used in photography. Creams and lotions are designed for giving the skin time off. One new one in the "softly pink" tint that is all the rage in after-dark ensembles this season is a dry skin lotion that offers dewy softness to complexion and body with lanolin and silicones that tired skins lap up.

Prejudiced Perhaps, Juror Is Told

DES MOINES (AP) — Municipal Judge Howard Brooks didn't hesitate when Ray Hanrahan asked to be excused from the municipal court petit jury panel.

Hanrahan is county attorney.

Brooks said he didn't believe any attorney would let Hanrahan pass as a juror anyway.

Old Fashioned Remedy

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—City foot patrolmen are going back to carrying old-fashioned nightsticks. Police Chief Milton Winslow, in authorizing expenditure of $375 to buy 100 such clubs, said they are needed to handle juvenile hoodlums. The order came after a patrolman was severely beaten trying to break up a fight at a teen age dance.

Brighten the Holidays With Christmas Sweets

It wouldn't be Christmas without holiday cookies. A traditional Christmas confection of Vienna may provide a new note in the cookie jar this year. Lillian Langseth Christensen of New Milford, Conn., author of the recently published "Look and Cook" book and recipe service, suggests the following continental.

SUGAR PRETZELS

6 ½ cups flour, 1 ¼ cups butter, 1¾ cups confectioners' sugar, 1-3 cup milk, 2 eggs, beaten, 1 pinch salt, 2 teaspoon vanilla for half of dough, 2 tablespoons cocoa for other half of dough, Vegetable shortening for pans.

CREAM BUTTER, add sugar and stir well, add eggs and milk alternately with flour. Make a smooth dough, flavoring half with vanilla the other half with cocoa. Roll dough into a sausage and cut into even pieces. Roll these pieces, one at a time, into long "sausages" about ¼ inch in diameter, keeping the other pieces cool until used. Cut into seven inch lengths. Lay the two ends of a 7-inch strip across each other and twist once to make a pretzel. Place the pretzels on a cookie sheet greased with vegetable shortening. Bake in a medium hot over (375 degrees) till done, about fifteen minutes. Makes about 10 dozen pretzels.

Dip the pretzels in thin white icing. To prepare it, mix sugar with lemon juice and just enough very hot water to make a thick, cream-like paste. Whip the paste well and keep it liquid enough for dipping and coating the pretzels. Dip the pretzels while they are still very hot, as this is the secret of making the icing adhere.

WHITE ICING

.oungsters Can Prevent Tragedies

By STEVE LOWELL

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP) — Grade school pupils got a warning recently to " keep away from strangers!"

The public school sytem sent a printed and illustrated page home with them to give to their parents so fathers and mothers could read and enlarge on the subject.

"Through the years, we have had quite a little trouble with children being lured away," says F. M. Wilson, safety director for the public school system. "The children would go with strangers, not thinking, and run into trouble."

The warning starts out with this statement to parents:

"Children are not released to unidentified persons. Parents who want their children released must come to school and not telephone. School children are in the school's care from the beginning of the school day until the close of that day."

• • •

THE LEAFLET shows a little girl standing on a sidewalk facing a man sitting in a parked car with the door open. The warning says:

"If a man asks: Directions — Tell him if you know but do not go with him. Would you like a ride to school? — Tell him you do not ride with people you do not know. Would you like some candy? — Tell him you do not take things from strangers. Would you like a job for a few minutes? — Tell him you are on your way to school. Would you go with him because your parents want you to come home? — Tell him you will see your principal and he will call your parents."

The well-illustrated leaflet goes on to warn:

"Don't go with men or women you do not know. Don't play away from home, and always play with other children. Stay with people you know. Do not ask a stranger for help. Don't play alone on school playgrounds."

• • •

EACH SUBJECT is accompanied by a photo depicting a fitting situation. It winds up with a picture of two husky, smiling policemen on each side of a little boy holding a school crossing patrol signal. The leaflet says:

"When you need help these are your best friends. Do not be afraid to talk to them if you are lost, sick or in any kind of trouble. They will help you."

Wilson says, "We think these warnings have done some good. We haven't had any unhappy experiences, that I can recall, in the past few years."

He gives this example of how well the warning sinks in:

"About three years ago I noticed a boy having trouble with a broken bike. I offered to take him home. This little fourth or fifth-grader looked at me suspiciously and said, 'Well, we're not supposed to.' I had to prove to him that I was a school man before he would trust me. The principal OK'd me."

'Birdbath' Inspector Is Senator's Title

PORTALES, N. M. (AP)—When a Portales News-Tribune headline blared "Senator Dennis Chavez Inspects City's Birdbaths," it wasn't a gag.

Attention of the senior New Mexico Democratic senator was directed to a recently completed urban route of U. S. Highway 70 through the city which fails to drain properly. The resultant pools have been labeled "birdbaths."

Bible-Reading Month Recalls Gideon Start

By JERRY KLEIN

NEW YORK—Thanksgiving Day, begins Worldwide Bible Reading Month, so it is appropriate to take down the Good Book for a moment and see just how much you know about its contents. Do you know which is the longest verse in the Bible, for example? How about the shortest? In which book is the name of God not even mentioned?

No peeking now. However, the longest verse is the 9th verse of the 8th chapter of Esther. It's also the Book of Esther which doesn't once mention God. The shortest verse is found in the Book of John —11th chapter, 35th verse: "Jesus wept."

There are other fascinating facts about the Bible. The longest name is found in Chapter 8 of Isaiah: "Mahershalalh a s hbaz." Every lettsr of the alphabet is contained in the 21st verse of the 7th chapter of Ezra.

You probably never bothered to count, but the Holly Bible contains exactly 3,566,480 letters; 733,693 words; 31,102 verses; 1,189 chapters, and 66 books. The word "and" will be found precisely 46,277 times; the word "Lord" 1,855 times.

However, the 37th chapter of Issiah and the 19th chapter of the Second Book of Kings are virtually the same. Psalm 119 is the longest chapter of the Bible; the 117th Psalm, the shortest chapter.

Did you know that besides being the all-time best seller, the Bible also is the book most commonly stolen?

• • •

THE GIDEONS, put millions of copies in hotel rooms, hospitals, prisons and youth centers, report that a veritable bonanza in Bibles have found their way into private libraries.

"We don't mind our Bibles being taken," the Gideons say, however, "anybody who would steal a Bible is very much in need of the Scriptures. We hope he will keep the Good Book with him, read it and learn a better way of life!"

The Gideons know from bitter experience that thousands of their Bibles will be taken every year, but they figure that each one represents thousands of private sermons delivered to the "borrower."

They keep publishing thousands every week, realizing that a large percentage will wind up in somebody's suitcase or coat pocket.

The Gideons got started one night in 1899 when two traveling salesmen had to share a room in a crowded hotel at Boscobel, Wis. One salesman was a confirmed bedtime Bible reader, and the other liked the idea, too. Together they formed a religious organization for the spiritual benefit of traveling salesmen, like themselves.

• • •

AT THE FIRST meeting, one salesman read aloud Chapters 6 and 7 of the Book of Judges, which tell how the Lord helped Gideon overcome the pagan tribe of Midianites. The salesmen took the name, Gideons, and vowed to spread the word of God's power.

In 1908 they began spreading the word on a large scale by putting Bibles into hotel rooms. Since then, the books have been placed in — and stolen from — ships, trains, planes, and even jails!

According to the Gideons, if a Bible manages to stay in a hotel room 10 years without being taken, it's removed and placed in a jail or poorhouse. They said that over these 10 years, it has at least 3,000 opportunities to be read.

• • •

HOW the Gideons have helped men to avoid evil is well illustrated by the story of the hotel guest who entered his room fairly well plastered. He spied the familiar black book and, enraged, threw it out the window.

The Bible crashed down through a daylight into the hotel's cellar where—like a thunderbolt sent by Jehovah Himself — it landed inside a ring of men.

They screamed and ran away when they saw the book which speaks out so strongly against such abuses as gambling.

They didn't stop to pick up their dice!

LOOKING TO SUMMER—It is a long way to summer, but they're already showing styles for next year's warm weather. Here, Esme Celliers models a balloon dress in multi-colored bottle printed linen at a London showing. With it, model wears an exotic Italian straw hat which has fringed edges.

Sew, Sew, Sew For Christmas

By DOROTHY ROE
By The Associated Press

Nobody is busier at Christmas time than the woman who sews, for department stores everywhere are crammed with special Christmas fabrics that fairly cry out to be stitched into holiday finery.

This year you'll find fabrics that reflect the Christmas spirit in gay prints featuring jingle bells, holly wreaths, ribbons and reindeer, mostly in festive traditional red, green and white. Women are buying these fabrics to make into all sorts of gifts and household accessories. And since the new fabrics are colorfast and sanforized against shrinkage, they know the articles they make can be tossed in the washing machine time after time, and come up smiling.

• • •

ONE BRIGHT idea of a young girl is a frivolous Christmas nightie made from a fabric printed with colorful Christmas-tree balls. Local sewing center experts suggest one of the new shorty gowns with frilly bloomers to match.

Since this is a border print, it is most effective to follow the scalloped line of the design at the hemline, using a stitched facing instead of a hem. Red cording accents the little-girl yoke, and the border is used again on matching panties.

By using a pattern printed with inch-rulers for easy alteration, you can achieve just the right length without interfering with the placement of the border.

• • •

ANOTHER GAY Christmas idea is to make upside-down Christmas trees from green felt, to hang up instead of the usual Christmas stocking. These may be decorated gaily with sequins and hung on the mantel, or placed over a bottle for a Christmas table centerpiece.

With gay Christmas fabrics and a little time at the sewing machine, you can make permanent Christmas accessories, to be brought out year after year, as the start of a family tradition.

If a U. S. flag should become so worn it must be discarded, it should be destroyed by burning.

Wrong Bill Hogan Reports to Police

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—A Tucson police officer walked into the El Paso, Tex., police station on official business and said, "I'm William Hogan."

"We're glad you gave yourself up," replied the desk sergeant.

Hogan was about to be escorted to a cell before he was able to explain he was William Hogan, policeman, not the William Hogan wanted by El Paso police for assault.

Troops Guard Coffee

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, (AP)—A record coffee harvest in Cuba's easternmost Oriente province is progressing rapidly. All of the crop is expected to be garnered by the end of November.

The harvesting is proceeding under the watchful eyes of Cuban troops. But there has been no interference with the work by supporters of rebel leader Fidel Castro, who is hiding out in the Sierra Maestra mountains bordering the coffee-growing lands.

.oungsters Can Prevent Tragedies

By STEVE LOWELL

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP) — Grade school pupils got a warning recently to " keep away from strangers!"

The public school sytem sent a printed and illustrated page home with them to give to their parents so fathers and mothers could read and enlarge on the subject.

"Through the years, we have had quite a little trouble with children being lured away," says F. M. Wilson, safety director for the public school system. "The children would go with strangers, not thinking, and run into trouble."

The warning starts out with this statement to parents:

"Children are not released to unidentified persons. Parents who want their children released must come to school and not telephone. School children are in the school's care from the beginning of the school day until the close of that day."

• • •

"If a man asks: Directions — Tell him if you know but do not go with him. Would you like a ride to school? — Tell him you do not ride with people you do not know. Would you like some candy? — Tell him you do not take things from strangers. Would you like a job for a few minutes? — Tell him you are on your way to school. Would you go with him because your parents want you to come home? — Tell him you will see your principal and he will call your parents."

The well-illustrated leaflet goes on to warn:

"Don't go with men or women you do not know. Don't play away from home, and always play with other children. Stay with people you know. Do not ask a stranger for help. Don't play alone on school playgrounds."

• • •

EACH SUBJECT is accompanied by a photo depicting a fitting situation. It winds up with a picture of two husky, smiling policemen on each side of a little boy holding a school crossing patrol signal. The leaflet says:

"When you need help these are your best friends. Do not be afraid to talk to them if you are lost, sick or in any kind of trouble. They will help you."

Wilson says, "We think these warnings have done some good. We haven't had any unhappy experiences, that I can recall, in the past few years."

He gives this example of how well the warning sinks in:

"About three years ago I noticed a boy having trouble with a broken bike. I offered to take him home. This little fourth or fifth-grader looked at me suspiciously and said, "Well, we're not supposed to.' I had to prove to him that I was a school man before he would trust me. The principal OK'd me."

'Birdbath' Inspector Is Senator's Title

PORTALES, N. M. (AP)—When a Portales News-Tribune headline blared "Senator Dennis Chavez Inspects City's Birdbaths," it wasn't a gag.

Attention of the senior New Mexico Democratic senator was directed to a recently completed urban route of U. S. Highway 70 through the city which fails to drain properly. The resultant pools have been labeled "birdbaths."

Bible-Reading Month Recalls Gideon Start

By JERRY KLEIN

NEW YORK—Thanksgiving Day, begins Worldwide Bible Reading Month, so it is appropriate to take down the Good Book for a moment and see just how much you know about its contents. Do you know which is the longest verse in the Bible, for example? How about the shortest? In which book is the name of God not even mentioned?

No peeking now. However, the longest verse is the 9th verse of the 8th chapter of Esther. It's also the Book of Esther which doesn't once mention God. The shortest verse is found in the Book of John —11th chapter, 35th verse: "Jesus wept."

There are other fascinating facts about the Bible. The longest name is found in Chapter 8 of Isaiah: "Mahershalalh a s hbaz." Every lettsr of the alphabet is contained in the 21st verse of the 7th chapter of Ezra.

You probably never bothered to count, but the Holly Bible contains exactly 3,566,480 letters; 733,693 words; 31,102 verses; 1,189 chapters, and 66 books. The word "and" will be found precisely 46,277 times; the word "Lord" 1,855 times.

However, the 37th chapter of Isaiah and the 19th chapter of the Second Book of Kings are virtually the same. Psalm 119 is the longest chapter of the Bible; the 117th Psalm, the shortest chapter.

Did you know that besides being the all-time best seller, the Bible also is the book most commonly stolen?

• • •

THE GIDEONS, put millions of copies in hotel rooms, hospitals, prisons and youth centers, report that a veritable bonanza in Bibles have found their way into private libraries.

"We don't mind our Bibles being taken," the Gideons say, however, "anybody who would steal a Bible is very much in need of the Scriptures. We hope he will keep the Good Book with him, read it and learn a better way of life!"

The Gideons know from bitter experience that thousands of their Bibles will be taken every year, but they figure that each one represents thousands of private sermons delivered to the "borrower."

They keep publishing thousands every week, realizing that a large percentage will wind up in somebody's suitcase or coat pocket.

The Gideons got started one night in 1899 when two traveling salesmen had to share a room in a crowded hotel at Boscobel, Wis.

One salesman was a confirmed bedtime Bible reader, and the other liked the idea, too. Together they formed a religious organization for the spiritual benefit of traveling salesmen, like themselves.

• • •

AT THE FIRST meeting, one salesman read aloud Chapters 6 and 7 of the Book of Judges, which tell how the Lord helped Gideon overcome the pagan tribe of Midianites. The salesmen took the name, Gideons, and vowed to spread the word of God's power.

In 1908 they began spreading the word on a large scale by putting Bibles into hotel rooms. Since then, the books have been placed in — and stolen from — ships, trains, planes, and even jails!

According to the Gideons, if a Bible manages to stay in a hotel room 10 years without being taken, it's removed and placed in a jail or poorhouse. They said that over these 10 years, it has at least 3,000 opportunities to be read.

• • •

HOW the Gideons have helped men to avoid evil is well illustrated by the story of the hotel guest who entered his room fairly well plastered. He spied the familiar black book and, enraged, threw it out the window.

The Bible crashed down through a daylight into the hotel's cellar where—like a thunderbolt sent by Jehovah Himself — it landed inside a ring of men.

They screamed and ran away when they saw the book which speaks out so strongly against such abuses as gambling.

They didn't stop to pick up their dice!

LOOKING TO SUMMER—It is a long way to summer, but they're already showing styles for next year's warm weather. Here, Esme Celliers models a balloon dress in multi-colored bottle printed linen at a London showing. With it, model wears an exotic Italian straw hat which has fringed edges.

Superstition Rides with Shrimpers

By FRANCES ANCKER

HOUSTON, Tex.—Ghost ships, "jinxes" at sea and mariners' superstitions—are they a part of the dead past?

If you spend a day on a modern, Diesel-powered shrimp trawler with the men who earn their livelihood outwitting the shark-infested Gulf of Mexico, you'll find superstition rides with today's shrimp fleet like an ever-present stowaway.

Try whistling on board a shrimp trawler, and the chances are that even the most seasoned and cynical captain will turn his boat around and put you back on land.

Whistling awhile the boat is under way is known among the shrimp fleet men as "whistling up a wind." It's challenging fate to keep the whistler aboard. His presence might summon the wind—the brute-quick, treacherous gulf squalls that have cost many shrimpers their lives.

• • •

SEVERAL of the 65-to-80-foot trawlers have disappeared in the brief, violent storms, broken by the wind with such a thoroughness that in some cases not a plank or a splinter of wood has remained to give a clue to the fate of boat or crew.

Such a ship was the Helen C., out of Galveston, Tex. She was last heard from in a bitter squall, shipping water off a spot known as "the stacks." That was several years ago. No trace has been found of her since.

Nor her captain. Nor her deckhand. But some shrimp fleet skippers claim to have seen the ghost ship since and approached her, only to find they could plow right through her, like mist.

There are "jinx" boats, too. Capt. John Branch, a veteran skipper who's shrimped from Florida to Texas, once was offered a boat that had been refused from Morgan City to Brownsville.

The trawler, one of the finest in the shrimp fleet, had been caught in two bad squalls, run aground and consistently put into port with no shrimp hauls.

• • •

NO CAPTAIN had luck aboard her. Branch took her to sea, determined to "work off her jinx." In two weeks, he had the trawler paying her way. In three weeks, she was leading the fleet with her shrimp hauls. Now she's not considered a jinx boat.

How did the shrimp fleet superstitions start? What's the reason behind them? Nobody knows for sure, But some have their ideas.

Take the superstition their forbids bringing a black suitcase on board a shrimp boat. It derived, some shrimpers believe, from the fact that a black suitcase was thought to resemble a coffin, and carrying such a suitcase was "bringing death aboard."

But how about the superstition that forbids the mention of alligators on board shrimp trawlers? "It probably would make more sense if superstition forbid the mentions of sharks," says John Mehos, past president of the Shrimp Association of the Americans.

"They're a shrimper's worst enemy. They can tear his net like a razon slicing through gauze. All he can do when they start following him is to stop shrimping or pray."

• • •

THERE ARE no superstitions about sharks, but the superstition that forbids the mention of alligators is believed to have got its start back in the days when shrimp boats were too small to navigate the gulf and had to confine themselves to the alligator-infested backwaters, where the red-eyed 'gators lay in wating.

The superstition about never starting a voyage on Friday is based on understandable logic.

Many Louisiana shrimp fleet men are French Catholics, and some who had mishaps at sea beleived the bad luck came of skipping Sunday Mass by shrimping over the week-end.

This probably accounts, too, for the belief among shrimpers that it is the very best of luck to start shrimping the first of the week, and sure to bring a good haul.

Nobody knows why it's considered bad luck among shrimp fleet men to say "Good luck," but they are words you'll rarely hear in the ports where the hardy but superstitious shrimp fleet ment put in.

Cure Was Quick And Doctor Survived

This sort of patient, who makes a practice of asking a doctor's help at chance street meetings, is a bane of the profession, said Dr. E. Keith Hammond of Paoli, Ind., in a talk to the Michigan State Medical Society.

Dr. Hammond told of one in particular. The cure was quick.

"He told me he thought he had a hernia so I told him to strip on the spot for an examination."

Hen Prefers Bed of Nails

Waits' buxom biddy has developed an affinity for nesting in a nail bin at a Kilgore lumber yard.

Every morning about 10 a. m. the hen sashays over to the bin, scratches the nails into a semblance of a nest and egg production gets under way.

R. E. Spradling, owner of the lumber company, said the hen first tried 10 and 12-penny nails for her nest. But they proved difficult to move around and she settled for 3-penny finishing nails.

Recently she brought a rooster friend in to look over the nest. It may be love. Her friend scattered a few roofing tacks around before departing.

Catastrophes, such as hurricanes and accidents, took approximately 1,200 lives in the United States in the first half of 1927.

Whole Family Enjoys Games At Christmas

AP NEWSFEATURES

This is the era of family fun, when Mom, Pop and the children once more are enjoying games and television as a family group.

Designed to foster gay fireside competition is the new crop of Christmas games available in shops many of which can be enjoyed on an equal baris by all members of the family.

There are indoor counterparts to many outdoor sports, such as baseball, football, hockey and even Giant Steps, the game children used to enjoy outdoors before the days of traffic problems.

• • •

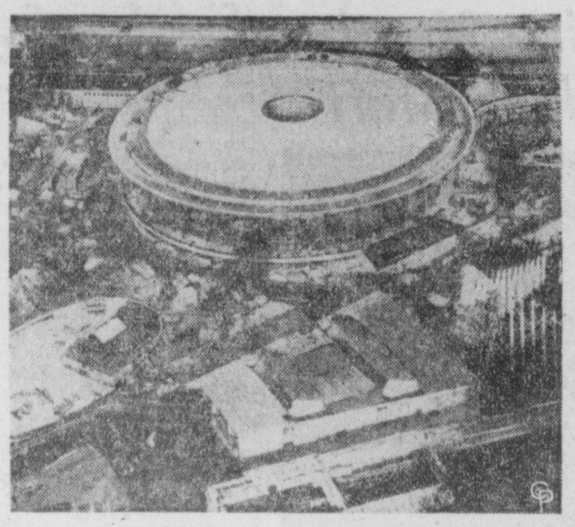
THE TREND to ease the course of homework via instructive games is accelerating. Fractions are easy as pie in a new game which bases play on sections of lemon and cherry pie representing various fractional divisions.

Sound is added to the fun in a new game slanted to include younger children. It bases play on ringing small bells as players make moves.

Another game with wide age appeal is a three-dimensional game in which players emulate test-car drivers, maneuvering cars by magnetic action.

There also are many card games, old and new, which can mean hours of companionship and fun for all the family.

First mention of raisins was in the Bible, where in I Samuel 30:12 the passage says: "And they gave him a piece of a cake of figs and two clusters of raisins and, when he had eaten, his spirit came again to him."



PAVILION FOR BRUSSELS FAIR—Made from a helicopter, this photo shows the massive United States pavilion being rushed to completion for the Brussels (Belgium) World's Fair, which opens April 15, 1958. According to an announcement in New York by Howard S. Cullman, U. S. Commissioner General to the Fair, it will be completed by January 1. He expressed disappointment that Congress had not appropriated the full amount of funds requested.

Old Dog Learns His New Tricks

His pride and joy is an outlaw, 200-pound St. Bernard he has taught to do small dog parlor stunts.

The dog's American Kennel Prince Valiant but the trainer has named him Brogan.

Brogan's early dog life in a small Minnesota town left much to be desired. He had a kindly, aged owner, but he was unmanageable. He was a bum and a fighter.

• • •

"IT'S HARD TO say how many dogs he's killed. He challenged anything to a fight. He even challenged me, but I won," Benson said.

Benson, who rehabilitated K-9 dogs after World War II, met Brogan through a hunting companion four years ago. He took him home for training.

Previous Experience Wasn't Appreciated For Grand Jury Duty

PRESTONSBURG, Ky. (AP) — Judge Edward P. Hill, about to charge a newly impaneled grand jury, paused to reflect that the face of one member seemed familiar.

Then the judge summoned Deputy Sheriff Frank Blackburn and asked him, under oath, if he hadn't raided the juror's premises and if his case hadn't been considered by the previous grand jury.

Blackburn replied that he had raided and volunteered that he also found liquor.

The juror was dismissed.

THERE ARE no superstitions about sharks, but the superstition that forbids the mention of alligators is believed to have got its start back in the days when shrimp boats were too small to navigate the gulf and had to confine themselves to the alligator-infested backwaters, where the red-eyed 'gators lay in wating.

The superstition about never starting a voyage on Friday is based on understandable logic.

Many Louisiana shrimp fleet men are French Catholics, and some who had mishaps at sea beleived the bad luck came of skipping Sunday Mass by shrimping over the week-end.

This probably accounts, too, for the belief among shrimpers that it is the very best of luck to start shrimping the first of the week, and sure to bring a good haul.

Nobody knows why it's considered bad luck among shrimp fleet men to say "Good luck," but they are words you'll rarely hear in the ports where the hardy but superstitious shrimp fleet ment put in.

Cure Was Quick And Doctor Survived

This sort of patient, who makes a practice of asking a doctor's help at chance street meetings, is a bane of the profession, said Dr. E. Keith Hammond of Paoli, Ind., in a talk to the Michigan State Medical Society.

Dr. Hammond told of one in particular. The cure was quick.

"He told me he thought he had a hernia so I told him to strip on the spot for an examination."

Hen Prefers Bed of Nails

Waits' buxom biddy has developed an affinity for nesting in a nail bin at a Kilgore lumber yard.

Every morning about 10 a. m. the hen sashays over to the bin, scratches the nails into a semblance of a nest and egg production gets under way.

R. E. Spradling, owner of the lumber company, said the hen first tried 10 and 12-penny nails for her nest. But they proved difficult to move around and she settled for 3-penny finishing nails.

Reeently she brought a rooster friend in to look over the nest. It may be love. Her friend scattered a few rooting tacks around before departing.

Catastrophes, such as hurricanes and accidents, took approximately 1,200 lives in the United States in the first half of 1927.

Whole Family Enjoys Games At Christmas

AP NEWSFEATURES

This is the era of family fun, when Mom, Pop and the children once more are enjoying games and television as a family group.

Designed to foster gay fireside competition is the new crop of Christmas games available in shops many of which can be enjoyed on an equal basis by all members of the family.

There are indoor counterparts to many outdoor sports, such as baseball, football, hockey and even Giant Steps, the game children used to enjoy outdoors before the days of traffic problems.

THE TREND to ease the course of homework via instructive games is accelerating. Fractions are easy as pie in a new game which bases play on sections of lemon and cherry pie representing various fractional divisions.

Sound is added to the fun in a new game slanted to include younger children. It bases play on ringing small bells as players make moves.

First mention of raisins was in the Bible, where in I Samuel 30:12, the passage says: "And they gave him a piece of a cake of figs and two clusters of raisins and, when he had eaten, his spirit came again to him."

Old Dog Learns His New Tricks

His pride and joy is an outlaw, 200-pound St. Bernard he has taught to do small dog parlor stunts.

The dog's American Kennel Prince Valiant but the trainer has named him Brogan.

Brogan's early dog life in a small Minnesota town left much to be desired. He had a kindly, aged owner, but he was unmanageable. He was a bum and a fighter.

• • •

"IT'S HARD TO say how many dogs he's killed. He challenged anything to a fight. He even challenged me, but I won," Benson said.

Benson, who rehabilitated K-9 dogs after World War II, met Brogan through a hunting companion four years ago. He took him home for training.

Previous Experience Wasn't Appreciated For Grand Jury Duty

Then the judge summoned Deputy Sheriff Frank Blackburn and asked him, under oath, if he hadn't raided the juror's premises and if his case hadn't been considered by the previous grand jury.

Fireman Builds Model Of Richtofen's Fokker

By GUS UTTER
Central Press Assn.

CLEVELAND — For many of his 32 years Edward Brennan, a city fireman in Cleveland's suburban Fairview Park, was a model airplane builder. About three years ago he became tired of the kind of models flown at the end of a string or in limited free flight.

He decided to build one that not only would be a duplicate of the original, but would fly with a pilot at the controls.

Brennan, a licensed pilot, selected for his model project a Fokker D-7, the type of German war bird that helped Baron - Manfred von Richthofen destroy 80 Allied planes in 1914-1918 conflict in Europe. He spent 1,800 hours for the ensuing several years to finish his ship which, so far as is humanly possible, is complete down to the last detail, including twin Spandau machine - guns, purchased but as yet unmounted.

• • •

THE FOKKER D-7 facsimile was put together from Tony Fokker's original plans, which Brennan obtained from the British Admirality. He made trips to Washington, D. C., home of two original Fokkers in this country. He made as few omissions from original specifications as possible.

One omission was wing - stress wiring which the German top echelon insisted was necessary although Fokker's cantilever bracing was entirely adequate.

Another modification, which does not meet the eye, was necessary because the U. S. aeronatical law says an air - pressure - on-tank system may not be used, so Brennan installed a conventional, modern pump system. Also, the engine is a 175 - horsepower Ranger from a Fairchild PT-19 trainer instead of a Mercedes, as in World War I.

• • •

OTHERWISE, the plane is exactly as primitive, by today's standards, as the 1917 model. The instrument panel, for instance, has as its primary gauges an altimeter and tachometer, hardly anything else.

Brennan's plane flies as well as the original, he says, and that often was too well for Allied flyers in World War I. The original, and Brennan's model, had a top speed of 120 miles an hour and the ability of hanging on its propellor, as airmen say, before it fell off into a spin.

The Fokker D-7 could come up under an Allied plane, pour bullets into its belly and dive in a few seconds. Eddie Rickenbacker, A top ace who scored 26 kills, rates the Fokker D-7 as "the toughest one the Germans put against us." Charles Nungesser, a Spad-flying French ace, had a score of 45 German planes before he was downed by a Fokker D-7.

Brennan built his plane principally from tubing of a wrecked small plane, a Cessna twin VC-78, which is the kind you see around community airports. He brought imported Irish linen for the fuselage and wing covering and applied the "dope" which shrinks the fabric, himself.

The small rudder surface of the Fokker makes firm control necessary on landing and takeoff to keep the ship on a tight course, Brennan says. Otherwise it is supremely airworthy.

He wanted a flying model. So he built one.

Wise Santas Choose Picture Book Gifts

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE

Long before a child can read he will love books. If he lives in a home where everyone reads, he is a lot more likely to grow up with a love of good reading then if he never sees an adult crack a book.

A good picture book must have lovely illustrations, beautiful format and an amusing story. The pictures that appeal to the young child are clear and bright with the details of life that are familiar. The pictures themselves must tell the story. The story needs to be simple and told with not much text. It is not necessary that the words themselves be easy to read.

A picture book is not intended as a first reader, but starts the youngster on the way toward being a reader by giving him a love of books. After the story has been read to him over and over, you will see him pick up the book, and "read" the story. He knows every work but he reads the pictures, not the little black marks. He learns the sound of big strong words that go with the pictures—words he couldn't "read" for years—but he loves them, and his vocabulary grows. He may amaze you, like 5-year-old Chris, who took his turn at a guessing game when the whole family was in the car: "I'm thinking of an amphibian that's green," he said.

Each child is different from every other child, but there are picture books for all. A picture book is not a toy the little child enjoys all by himself. Books need t. be shared. Mother or Daddy should look at the book with Molly, read her the story as the chubby finger points out the familiar details in the pictures. Another time Molly will bring the book over to Mother, snuggle up next to her and open up the bright pages. If Mother makes a single mistake in reading the text, Molly is very likely to correct her. Molly already knows exactly how it should go.

Children do not read a book through once and then put it aside. They want it read over and over and over again. A good book becomes a cherished possession.

Sometimes grownups don't know how to buy books for little children. Mothers and fathers know the child's likes better than grandparents, aunts, uncles and miscellaneous friends, but even parents are often uneasy about what's good for the child.

Remember first books are for fun. If there is any deep down objective it is to show the little child that pleasure lies between the covers of a book. Don't buy books because they teach something. Books do teach, of course, but the teaching is secondary to the joy of the story itself.

Some of the books we adults read as children are still good, but don't forget that many new ones and good ones are being written every year. Children's books are reviewed in the newspapers— usually the Sunday editions and often in women's magazines.

Your best bet is to go to a good book store and spend some time looking over their selection of picture books. If you doubt your ability to pick out something, especially if you're a maiden aunt or a rich uncle, drop in at the library and have a chat with the librarian of the Children's Room. She knows what books children enjoy.

It Will Pay to Start Christmas Early

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.

Christmas has a way of pouncing out of the fall. It always seems to come before you are ready. When you wake up to the fact that the big day is just around the corner there is a mad dash to get everything ready. Tempers are likely to snap during mad dashes.

This year get going early and make some leisurely preparations with the children. When you start early you'll have time to talk to the children about what Christmas means. It's a wonderful season and children need to be part of all of it— not just receivers of gifts.

About the first of December begin to plan your Christmas decorations. It is of course too early to set up a tree, but you could plan a creche or nativity scene. Talk about the Christmas story and let the children make animals and figures, trees and houses to represent the nativity.

As you work up a little scene your children begin to feel the spirit of Iiim whose birthday we celebrate. Perhaps you want to buy a few figures, but don't buy too many. A homemade scene with figures moulded out of clay, with pine cones for trees, will mean more to the children.

Your home - made Story of Christ will be worked over and played with for weeks before Christmas.

• • •

PLAN some other decorations for the house and put them up as the children work on them. Try to add a few new items every day or so.

Make a big batch of Christmas cookies. Cut them in interesting shapes and decorate them with bright colored sugar. These can be stored until needed, and make wonderful gifts for visiting children during Christmas week, or even before. Perhaps some of the children would like to send a fancy decorated cooky as a Christmas card to a special friend.

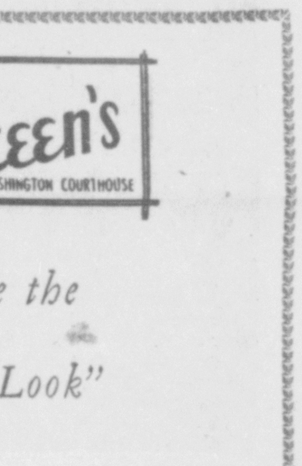
• • •

CHRISTMAS CARDS can be planned well before Christmas. As much as you can, interest the children in making their own cards. If you have kept those that were sent to you last year many of them will supply pictures which the children can cut out and paste on cards or colored paper.

When children buy their cards let them make their own selections, deciding which card goes to which person. Let them sign their own names and stamp the envelopes.

Keep the children interested in doing things for Christmas, doing things for the family, for their friends and taking part in community plans. Their interest in others helps to keep down the pitch of excitement in what is being done for them and it also helps to give them a real feeling of love and concern for others.

This, much more than receiving, is what we want our youngsters to feel about Christmas.



"SURVIVAL OR . . ."—Retired Gen. James H. Doolittle, famed U. S. Air Force general and World War II hero, tells the Senate missile-satellite inquiry in Washington, D. C., that power for the U. S. It Will Pay to Start Christmas Early

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.

Christmas has a way of pouncing out of the fall. It always seems to come before you are ready. When you wake up to the fact that the big day is just around the corner there is a mad dash to get everything ready. Tempers are likely to snap during mad dashes.

This year get going early and make some leisurely preparations with the children. When you start early you'll have time to talk to the children about what Christmas means. It's a wonderful season and children need to be part of all of it— not just receivers of gifts.

About the first of December begin to plan your Christmas decorations. It is of course too early to set up a tree, but you could plan a creche or nativity scene. Talk about the Christmas story and let the children make animals and figures, trees and houses to represent the activity.

As you work up a little scene your children begin to feel the spirit of Him whose birthday we celebrate. Perhaps you want to buy a few figures, but don't buy too many. A homemade scene with figures moulded out of clay, with pine cones for trees, will mean more to the children.

Your home - made Story of Christ will be worked over and played with for weeks before Christmas.

• • •

PLAN some other decorations for the house and put them up as the children work on them. Try to add a few new items every day or so.

Make a big batch of Christmas cookies. Cut them in interesting shapes and decorate them with bright colored sugar. These can be stored until needed,,and make wonderful gifts for visiting children during Christmas week, or even before. Perhaps some of the children would like to send a fancy decorated cooky as a Christmas card to a special friend.

• • •

CHRISTMAS CARDS can be planned well before Christmas. As much as you can, interest the children in making their own cards. If you have kept those that were sent to you last year many of them will supply pictures which the children can cut out and paste on cards or colored paper.

When children buy their cards let them make their own selections, deciding which card goes to which person. Let them sign their own names and stamp the envelopes.

Keep the children interested in doing things for Christmas, doing things for the family, for their friends and taking part in community plans. Their interest in others helps to keep down the pitch of excitement in what is being done for them and it also helps to give them a real feeling of love and concern for others.

This, much more than receiving, is what we want our youngsters to feel about Christmas.

Shellfish, Venison Should Replace Turkey on U.S. Thanksgiving Table

By JERRY KLEIN
Central Press Assn.

Shellfish and deer meat— that's what you ought to eat to celebrate Thanksgiving in the traditional way.

Many historians deny that turkey was on the Pilgrims' menu when they marked the original Thanksgiving, and neither was pumpkin pie nor many other delicacies that we'll eat in the mistaken belief that they were enjoyed first by the men of the Mayflower.

In fact, many of our beliefs about Thanksgiving apparently are without foundation in fact. Take the traditional belief that the Mayflower first touched the shores of the New World at Plymouth, Mass., site of the famous Plymouth Rock.

Actually, the Pilgrims first sighted land at Truro on Cape Cod in November, 1620. The next day a group came ashore at Provincetown, and it wasn't for a month that the founding fathers finally sailed to Plymouth.

Of course, they hadn't intended to land in New England at all. Originally, their destination was Virginia where another colony, Jamestown, had been in existence for 13 years.

• • •

A FAMOUS POEM tells how the Mayflower's passengers came ashore "on a stern and rockbound coast." In reality, the Massachusetts coastline was— and still is— quite level and sandy.

As for Plymouth Rock, that's another Thanksgiving tradition that modern historians reject. It wasn't until 1741— more than a century after the Pilgrims' arrival— that a local resident identified the rock as the one on which the pioneers set foot in coming ashore.

Today the rock is sheltered by a Grecian temple placed over it by the Colonial Dames of America, and tourists may gaze in awe, but not touch it. However, there are "no historical facts to support the belief that the Pilgrims landed on this particular rock." Still and all, Massachusetts will celebrate this event come Dec. 21, Forefathers' Day.

• • •

THE MAYFLOWER wasn't even the first ship to enter Plymouth harbor. Vessels from three other nations already had dropped anchor there, according to historians. The shore had been charted and the waters sounded long before the pioneers arrived.

Incidentally, about half the passengers on the Mayflower were Pilgrims who had broken from the Church of England. The other half were adventurers, businessmen and servants.

The famous Miles Standish wasn't a Pilgrim, but a professional soldier hired to keep order among the colonists.

• • •

IT'S SAID the Pilgrims were proud that none of them had blue blood," but some of their descendants worked out family coats - of-arms.

For instance, there was John Howland, who came to America as a servant, but later boasted a coat-of-arms with four lions, rampant.

This Thanksgiving also will no doubt see the Pilgrims mixed up with the Puritans. However, the Puritans were still loyal members of the Anglican church who preferred to "purify if from within rather than leave it."

The straitlaced Puritans were different from the Pilgrims in dress manner and worship. In addition, they came to America in 1628, eight years after the Mayflower, and settled not in Plymouth, but in Salem.

All in all, we have so many misconceptions that Thanksgiving might well be called America's craziest, mixed - up holiday!

Ultra Modern Toys on Tap For Christmas

His 1957 pack already was well stocked with electronic guided missiles and rocket launchers when Sputnik invaded the sky, touching off a new rush of satellite - inspired playthings which are pouring off assembly lines of Toyland to keep junior space men up to date.

Science takes the spotlight in Toyland as elsewhere this Christmas, as children take in stride the imminence of space travel and confidently expect toys in step with the times.

"This is a trend that has been evident for several years," says Melvin Freud, president of Toy Guidance Council. "Radar," atomic energy and electronics have inspired a huge volume of playthings."

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — A landlord, 74, accused his tenant, 81, of spreading lies about him.

The tenant took exception and jumped from his chair to punch his landlord in the nose. The 84-year-old tenant then grabbed a stove shaker and hit the landlord again. The landlord grabbed a baseball bat and took after his tenant.

The two oldsters required some stitching. Twelve stitches were taken in the head of the 74-year-old landlord and 20 in the scalp of the 84-year-old tenant.

Lions of WHS Get First Test Friday Night

Cage Season Opener To Be Played Here With Bexley Lions

Time is fast dribbling away for the 15 Washington C. H. High School hoopsters who open their 1957 - 58 basketball campaign against the Lions of Bexley High School here Friday night.

Will the Lions of Washington C. H. live up to the auspicious pre - season predictions? Wait and see," says Coach Herb Russell. But the implication makes it apparent that he thinks —or at least hopes— they will.

Bexley topped the Lions, 62-50, in the opener a year ago, when the Lions pulled a 10-8 record out of a rough schedule.

With much the same schedule, Coach Russell has many of the same boys back— and they're better trained now that they're a year older.

On this, Russell has been basing his hopes for a busy and profitable season.

• • •

LEADING the Lion attack Friday night will be Tom Swaim, a fast, aggressive defensive master whom Russell is boosting for all-state honors. Swaim, a senior, is only 5 feet 11 inches tall, but he nevertheless averaged 13 points per game last season.

"I expect Tom to be our best all - around performer this year," Russell stated in a pre - season forecast.

Larry Milstead, last year's leading scorer with a 14 - point average, will be back again, as well. Though he's only 5 feet 10 inches tall, Milstead has a reputation as a good jump shot from outside and a good foul shooter.

Jim McWilliams, a good rebounder, will be the starting center and it is on his 6 - foot 3 inch frame that the Lions are placing the responsibility for solving their height problem.

Bob Burris, at 6 feet, 1 inch, will be counted on in the height column, too, as will Floyd Southward, at 6 feet, and Doug Rider, at 6 feet, one inch— among others.

Ohio State Set To Unveil Its 1957-58 Cage Combine

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State University, basking in football glory, unveils its 1957-58 basketball team next Wednesday when the Buckeyes clash with powerful Kentucky.

The tough inaugural at the St. John Arena launches the Buckeyes on a rugged 22-game schedule that could be marked with pitfalls and roadblocks.

But Ohio State, with its brightest prospects in years, has visions of a Big Ten championship and a shot at a national title.

"We think our club should be as good as last year and maybe better. We'll be up there battling for that title."

Stahl, now in his eighth season at the Buckeye helm, is optimistic about the makeup of his squad. He has four returning regulars and a host of talented newcomers.

Leading the returnees is Frank "Chico" Howard, a burly 6-6 forward from Columbus South. Howard, eighth best rebounder in the nation last year, also scored 442 points in 22 contests for a 20-points-per-game average.

Other returning standouts are forward Ken Sidle, a 6-5 product of Ashland, center Larry Huston, 6-6, from Greenwich, and Jim Laughlin, a 6-4 guard from Charleston, W. Va. All are seniors except Huston, who has another year of eligibility.

Key to Ohio's hopes will be finding a replacement for the departed Gene Millard, a clever ballhandler and playmaker who made the Bucks' fast break click last year.

Joe Carlson, a 5-11 junior from Valley City, N. D., is the likely successor. Carlson, a transfer from the University of North Dakota, has impressed in pre-season workouts.

But senior Vern Barkstall, a peppery 5-9 letterman, is challenging Carlson for the starting berth. And a couple of good-looking sophs, Joe Roberts of Columbus East and Dick Furry of Columbus West, could break into the starting lineup.

Stahl is high on the latter pair, but is expected to bring them along slowly. Roberts, 6-6, and Furry, 6-5, along with Barkstall, Dick Hagedorn, a 6-2 junior from Grove City and Norm Martin, a 6-3 senior from Sycamore Valley, probably will make up Ohio's second unit.

Others on the roster are James Ferrell, 6-1 junior from Columbus South; James Niehaus, 6-0 junior from Hamilton; Dave Barker, 6-3 soph from Columbus St. Marys; Howard Nourse, 6-7 soph from Springfield; Don Cramer, 5-11 soph from Lewistown, Pa., and Ron Nischwitz, 6-2 junior from Dayton.

The Buckeyes appear to have the right combination of height, speed and depth to cop the conference crown. But Stahl says the league is better balanced than last year.

"Indiana and Michigan State will be tough to beat again and Iowa and Northwestern should be much improved," Stahl says.

"But if we can find someone to give us the leadership Millard did, we could go all the way," he added.

If the Buckeyes do, it will be their first title since 1950 when Dick Schnittker paced Ohio to the championship.

Aggies-Texas Tilt Today Tops Holiday Menu

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

No matter which wins the Texas-A&M-Texas game today, the winners won't know what they've won for about 48 hours in another of those weird finishes to the Southwest Conference football race.

A-bowling they go, but to WHICH bowl they go depends on Saturday's Rice-Baylor game.

Two of the other Thanksgiving Day games—Virginia Military-Virginia Tech and Utah-Utah State—also had more than tradition at stake. VMI probably will get the Tangerine Bowl berth opposite Mississippi Southern with a victory over Tech. And Utah can take the Skyline Conference title with a victory.

Elsewhere on today's schedule it's Colgate-Brown, Cornell-Penn, William & Mary-Richmond, Cincinnati-Miami (Ohio) and Denver-Wyoming.

Rice (4-1-0) can win the Southwest crown and the Cotton Bowl's host berth by defeating Baylor (0-4-1). But a Rice defeat would give the Texas A&M-Texas winner the title and Cotton Bowl ticket.

If both Rice and Texas A&M (4-1-0) win, it's a cochampionship with Rice going to the Cotton Bowl, by virtue of a 7-6 victory over the Aggies, and Texas headed, in all probability, for the Sugar Bowl.

If both Rice and Texas (3-1-1) win, Texas probably would get the Sugar Bowl invitation, as the Southwest runner-up. If Rice loses Texas takes the title and the Cotton Bowl bid with a victory.

Rice was beaten by Texas, and Texas was beaten by Southern Methodist, tied by Baylor.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)— The Gator Bowl selection committee had a representative at the Texas A&M vs. Texas game today and will have others at the Mississippi vs. Mississippi State and Tennessee vs. Vanderbilt football games Saturday.

Those six teams are prime targets of Gator Bowl selectors together with Arkansas, Rice, West Virginia and Boston College.

Cincy-Miami Traditional Tilt Awaited

CINCINNATI (AP) — Except for Ohio State's Rose Bowl appearance, Ohio's college football season will be wrapped up and tucked away here today with the traditional Thanksgiving Day clash between the University of Cincinnati and Miami.

For a change, both teams will go into the game with only ordinary records. Cincinnati has a 5-3-1 record. It won only one of four contests in the mixed - up Missouri Valley Conference in which even some games with non-league opponents counted in the conference standing.

Miami won the Mid-American Conference title but its record for the entire season is only 5-3.

On a comparative basis, UC got a tie with Dayton and won from Xavier while Miami lost to both.

A favorite's rating often doesn't mean much, however, in games between the two old rivals. Miami has won 29 games, Cincinnati 26 and there have been 6 ties.

Miami's current edge in the series has been built up in the last three years. UC pulled even with the Redskins in 1953 but now has lost three straight to Miami.

All Six Area Teams To Play Next Week

Only two of the six high school basketball teams in this area have games on Friday, but all of them will be in action next week.

Friday, Jeffersonville's Tigers (3-1) will go to New Vienna while the Lions of Washington C. H. High School are opening their season with the Lions from Bexley on the WHS court.

Although area teams will be playing two games Tuesday night, neither of them will be played on home floors. New Holland's Bulldogs (4-1) are to go to Madison South and the Lions of WHS are to play at Westerville.

Three games are on the schedule for next Friday, Dec. 6, but only one of them will be played in the county. In that one Good Hope's Mad Anthonys (1-5) will play at Bloomingburg. New Holland's Bulldogs are booked for a Pickaway County League game at Monroe and the Lions of WHS will go to Wilmington to meet the Hurricane in their first Southcentral Ohio (SCO) League game of the season.

In the one game slated for Saturday, Dec. 7, neither team will play on its own court. The Tigers of Jeffersonville will play a "home" game with Good Hope's Mad Anthonys, but it will be on the Bloomingburg floor.

Cleveland's Mayor To Run For Governor

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland's mayor, Anthony J. Celebrezze, an independent Democrat, will seek the Democratic nomination for Governor in the May primary election.

The 47-year-old Celebrezze, who served two terms as a state senator before winning his third term in the mayor's office, issued a statement charging the present state administrations with failure to give sufficient concern to many problems. He blamed this on a "lack of positive executive direction" from the office of Gov. C. William O'Neill, a Republican.

The mayor conferred recently with U.S. Sen. Frank J. Lausche, a former Cleveland mayor and five-term governor. Lausche told reporters he talked also with former U. S. Sen. Thomas A. Burke, another ex-Cleveland mayor, and that he (Lausche) would not interfere in the primary. Burke has not announced his candidacy for governor, but he is considered a probable candidate.

Mayor Maynard E. Sensenbrenner of Columbus is the only other major Democratic candidate who has announced for the primary.

Lima Suspect Seen Washing Bloody Duds

Forsythe, 42, is on trial, charged with the first degree murder of Charles Conner, 37. Conner's body has not been found. Two witnesses have testified they saw Forsythe shoot Conner in Forsythe's apartment the night of Aug. 10.

George Cash, caretaker at Greenwood Park near Cadiz, testified Wednesday he saw Forsythe wash some blood-stained clothing there at a well, then wash the floor of his station wagon.

His attorneys restrained him.

Earlier, the prosecution called Emory Galloway, supervisor of the Crime Laboratory of Criminal Identification and Investigation at London, to the stand. He said he found blood spots in at least two places in Forsythe's home and on the floor of his station wagon.

The trial adjourned while Cash was under cross examination.

The first talking movie was "Don Juan," which Warner Brothers released in 1926. The sound was on synchronized phonograph records.

Cage Season Opener To Be Played Here With Bexley Lions

Time is fast dribbling away for the 15 Washington C. H. High School hoopsters who open their 1957 - 58 basketball campaign against the Lions of Bexley High School here Friday night.

Will the Lions of Washington C. H. live up to the auspicious pre - season predictions? Wait and see," says Coach Herb Russell. But the implication makes it apparent that he thinks —or at least hopes— they will.

Bexley topped the Lions, 62-50, in the opener a year ago, when the Lions pulled a 10-8 record out of a rough schedule.

With much the same schedule, Coach Russell has many of the same boys back— and they're better trained now that they're a year older.

On this, Russell has been basing his hopes for a busy and profitable season.

• • •

LEADING the Lion attack Friday night will be Tom Swaim, a fast, aggressive defensive master whom Russell is boosting for all-state honors. Swaim, a senior, is only 5 feet 11 inches tall, but he nevertheless averaged 13 points per game last season.

"I expect Tom to be our best all - around performer this year," Russell stated in a pre - season forecast.

Larry Milstead, last year's leading scorer with a 14 - point average, will be back again, as well. Though he's only 5 feet 10 inches tall, Milstead has a reputation as a good jump shot from outside and a good foul shooter.

Jim McWilliams, a good rebounder, will be the starting center and it is on his 6 - foot 3 inch frame that the Lions are placing the responsibility for solving their height problem.

Bob Burris, at 6 feet, 1 inch, will be counted on in the height column, too, as will Floyd Southward, at 6 feet, and Doug Rider, at 6 feet, one inch— among others.

Vital shorter men in the Lion line will be Bill Herman, a 5 foot, 9 inch guard with a hunter's eye at the foul line, and Phil Johnson, another 5 foot, 9 inch guard.

HORSE OF YEAR? - - - - By Alan Maver

Ohio State Set To Unveil Its 1957-58 Cage Combine

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State University, basking in football glory, unveils its 1957-58 basketball team next Wednesday when the Buckeyes clash with powerful Kentucky.

The tough inaugural at the St. John Arena launches the Buckeyes on a rugged 22-game schedule that could be marked with pitfalls and roadblocks.

But Ohio State, with its brightest prospects in years, has visions of a Big Ten championship and a shot at a national title.

Coach Floyd Stahl's cagers, who finished in a deadlock for third place in the Western Conference last year, figure to improve their 9-5 record.

Even the diminutive Stahl readily admits the Buckeyes have the equipment to go all the way.

"We think our club should be as good as last year and maybe better. We'll be up there battling for that title."

Stahl, now in his eighth season at the Buckeye helm, is optimistic about the makeup of his squad. He has four returning regulars and a host of talented newcomers.

"We've got better reserve strength than we've had in years," the Ohio coach says.

Leading the returnees is Frank "Chico" Howard, a burly 6-6 forward from Columbus South. Howard, eighth best rebounder in the nation last year, also scored 442 points in 22 contests for a 20-points-per-game average.

Other returning standouts are forward Ken Sidle, a 6-5 product of Ashland, center Larry Huston, 6-6, from Greenwich, and Jim Laughlin, a 6-4 guard from Charleston, W. Va. All are seniors except Huston, who has another year of eligibility.

Key to Ohio's hopes will be finding a replacement for the departed Gene Millard, a clever ballhandler and playmaker who made the Bucks' fast break click last year.

Joe Carlson, a 5-11 junior from Valley City, N. D., is the likely successor. Carlson, a transfer from the University of North Dakota, has impressed in pre-season workouts.

But senior Vern Barkstall, a peppery 5-9 letterman, is challenging Carlson for the starting berth. And a couple of good-looking sophs, Joe Roberts of Columbus East and Dick Furry of Columbus West, could break into the starting lineup.

Stahl is high on the latter pair, but is expected to bring them along slowly. Roberts, 6-6, and Furry, 6-5, along with Barkstall, Dick Hagedorn, a 6-2 junior from Grove City and Norm Martin, a 6-3 senior from Sycamore Valley, probably will make up Ohio's second unit.

Others on the roster are James Ferrell, 6-1 junior from Columbus South; James Niehaus, 6-0 junior from Hamilton; Dave Barker, 6-3 soph from Columbus St. Marys; Howard Nourse, 6-7 soph from Springfield; Don Cramer, 5-11 soph from Lewistown, Pa., and Ron Nischwitz, 6-2 junior from Dayton.

The Buckeyes appear to have the right combination of height, speed and depth to cop the conference crown. But Stahl says the league is better balanced than last year.

"Indiana and Michigan State will be tough to beat again and Iowa and Northwestern should be much improved," Stahl says.

"But if we can find someone to give us the leadership Millard did, we could go all the way," he added.

If the Buckeyes do, it will be their first title since 1950 when Dick Schnittker paced Ohio to the championship.

Aggies-Texas Tilt Today Tops Holiday Menu

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

No matter which wins the Texas-A&M-Texas game today, the winners won't know what they've won for about 48 hours in another of those weird finishes to the Southwest Conference football race.

A-bowling they go, but to WHICH bowl they go depends on Saturday's Rice-Baylor game.

Two of the other Thanksgiving Day games—Virginia Military-Virginia Tech and Utah-Utah State—also had more than tradition at stake. VMI probably will get the Tangerine Bowl berth opposite Mississippi Southern with a victory over Tech. And Utah can take the Skyline Conference title with a victory.

Elsewhere on today's schedule it's Colgate-Brown, Cornell-Penn, William & Mary-Richmond, Cincinnati-Miami (Ohio) and Denver-Wyoming.

Rice (4-1-0) can win the Southwest crown and the Cotton Bowl's host berth by defeating Baylor (0-4-1). But a Rice defeat would give the Texas A&M-Texas winner the title and Cotton Bowl ticket.

If both Rice and Texas A&M (4-1-0) win, it's a cochampionship with Rice going to the Cotton Bowl, by virtue of a 7-6 victory over the Aggies, and Texas headed, in all probability, for the Sugar Bowl.

If both Rice and Texas (3-1-1) win, Texas probably would get the Sugar Bowl invitation, as the Southwest runner-up. If Rice loses Texas takes the title and the Cotton Bowl bid with a victory.

Ohio Highway Boss Denies He Is Extravagant

Noble Tells Engineers He Has Best Interest Of State at Heart

COLUMBUS (AP) — Ohio's highway boss, Charles M. Noble has told a committee of engineers that has criticized his freeway construction standards as being too extravagant that he has the best interests of Ohio at heart.

"I am certainly not designing wastefully or extravagantly," he told the committee headed by Robert Eastman, Clark County engineer.

The committee is from the Ohio County Engineers' Assn. which recently accepted a report urging the Ohio Department of Highways to follow national standards in building interstate freeways.

Referring to those standards, Noble said:

"We must do better than the minimums. The minimums are something you don't want to go below. Ohio is not the type of state you want to use minimums on."

Albert S. Porter, Cuyahoga County engineer who has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, is on the committee. He said Noble's standards mean it will cost $175,000 more per mile to build interstate highways than if the national minimums were followed.

"That certainly is not peanuts," Porter commented.

Porter also said that in many cases consulting engineers drew plans for the highway department become "robot construction men" because they are told by the department what to do. Noble responded:

"We are telling these engineers we want them to do the best job possible. That is exactly my policy, to go above the standards when we reasonably can."

Noble said the department has reviewed its construction principles "very carefully." Porter commented: "If you think everything being done now is right, then we have no further questions."

Ohio Highway Boss Denies He Is Extravagant

Noble Tells Engineers He Has Best Interest Of State at Heart

COLUMBUS (AP) — Ohio's highway boss, Charles M. Noble has told a committee of engineers that has criticized his freeway construction standards as being too extravagant that he has the best interests of Ohio at heart.

"I am certainly not designing wastefully or extravagantly," he told the committee headed by Robert Eastman, Clark County engineer.

The committee is from the Ohio County Engineers' Assn. which recently accepted a report urging the Ohio Department of Highways to follow national standards in building interstate freeways.

Referring to those standards, Noble said:

"We must do better than the minimums. The minimums are something you don't want to go below. Ohio is not the type of state you want to use minimums on."

Albert S. Porter, Cuyahoga County engineer who has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, is on the committee. He said Noble's standards mean it will cost $175,000 more per mile to build interstate highways than if the national minimums were followed.

"That certainly is not peanuts," Porter commented.

Porter also said that in many cases consulting engineers drew plans for the highway department become "robot construction men" because they are told by the department what to do. Noble responded:

"We are telling these engineers we want them to do the best job possible. That is exactly my policy, to go above the standards when we reasonably can."

Noble said the department has reviewed its construction principles "very carefully." Porter commented: "If you think everything being done now is right, then we have no further questions."

The U. S. Attorney's office said the next step will be for North Carolina to initiate extradition.

City Police and Firemen Ask Salary Hikes

A letter signed by all 12 members of the Police Department requested a 15 per cent pay hike plus six paid holidays per year.

Firemen, who in some cases draw $20 to $30 less per month than officers of the same rank in the Police Department, ask that they be granted salary increases equal to those which may be granted to policemen, and also an adjustment to the same salaries per month which would be paid to policemen. Ten firemen signed the pay hike request.

Members of both departments say that present salaries are inadequate "to make ends meet" and that they must seek other jobs during time off from their regular duties.

• • •

THE POLICE request points out that a 15 per cent increase would make the salary of a patrolman $4,554 per year, which, the letter says, is "just the average pay of other police departments in the 10,000 to 15,000 bracket."

Firemen work a 66-hour week. Their petition cites a number of inequities in pay as compared with the Police Department salary list.

Present police salaries run from $330 to $383 per month for the chief who also gets an additional $100 monthly for serving as court bailiff.

• • •

At the same time Council agreed that Chalmers Markham, acting superintendent of the sewage treatment plant should be raised from $1.60 per hour to $400 per month and that he be given the title of superintendent.

These increases fulfill commitments made to both men when they were employed.

Bridge Repairs Discussed at Council Session

Commissioners Voice Views On Maintenance

A discussion of bridge maintenance within the city limits was on the agenda at a meeting of City Council Wednesday night, with County Commissioners Robert Cockerill, Cliff Hughes and Ralph Minton appearing to present the county's views on the subject.

City Manager James F. Parkinson pointed out that many of the bridges over Paint Creek are in need of repair and that immediate attention should be given to the S. North St., Sycamore St., W. Temple St., Elm St. and Oakland Ave. spans.

Parkinson said that since the city receives no money from the county for bridge repair that he feels the county should maintain the bridges with cooperation from the city.

Cockerill and Hughes observed that, according to their interpretation of the law, the commissioners are responsible only for those bridges within the corporation which carry county or state roads. "If dilapidated bridges are our responsibility we will do the work, but if they are the responsibility of the city then the municipality should foot the bills," the commissioners said.

• • •

IT WAS estimated that needed repairs to the shaky North St. bridge alone will cost a minimum of $10,000.

The friendly discussion ended with an agreement that County Prosecutor Rollo M. Marchant and City Solicitor William Junk should make a study of the situation and ascertain which of the bridges at any time in the past were parts of county highways.

The county engineer's maps also will be consulted on the question of which arteries are county roads and which are city streets.

Parkinson, at the same time, suggested that the solicitor investigate the possibility of the city sharing in a countywide bridge fund.

Commissioners agreed that they will erect load limit signs on the weakened bridges after County Engineer Charles Wagner inspects them.

• • •

RAY FRENCH of the Webber C. French Co. questioned Council about its annexation plans and expressed his interest in the industrial development of the city.

He said he wants to see the city grow industrially and added that Washington C. H. is being strangled because the municipality has outgrown its corporate limits. He stated that the city should consider annexing unimproved sites along railroads which would be attractive to industry.

Council President Ronald Cornwell told the small group of citizens present that Council has no concrete plans for annexation of additional territory at this time but that the matter has been discussed informally and will receive further study.

Councilman Ben Norris said that Council is interested in potential industrial sites and that at least one industry is presently interested in such sites here, but he did not identify the firm.

The question of sewer construction also is an important factor in any Council decision on the subject of annexation, Norris said.

Councilmen indicated that they hope to have some kind of annexation proposal ready before the May primary.

Council approved more than a dozen year-end fund transfers and additional appropriations from the general fund, and selected Monday afternoon, Dec. 23, as the date for their final meeting of the year.

Combine Accident Strips Farmer but He Stays on Job

MATADOR, Tex. (AP) — Wind whipped a loose tip of farmer E.D. Lawrence's overalls into a combine drive shaft Wednesday.

Lawrence, 68, struggled to jerk free. But the combine pulled off both his boots, snatched away his overalls, wound away most of his long underwear and scraped the skin off both legs.

Go-Ahead on Bonds

Trace that there had been a sufficient number of territory transfers to the city school district to have materially affected the tax duplicated in effect when the Miami Trace bonds were voted.

(The recent transfer of the 167-acre Baker Addition (Belle Aire) from Miami Trace District to the city school district was not included in these claims.)

(The Miami Trace Supreme Court case was brought by board members of that district to test the validity of a $1,652,500 bond issue for school construction approved at the same time the city bond issue was passed. The friendly proceeding against the board clerk, Mrs. Thompson, was so designed as to provide a test of all the Miami Trace bond procedures.)

(Although the clerk has now been dismissed as a party to the suit, the court permitted the six taxpayers to intervene, and eight of the 12 arguments they brought against the Miami Trace Board's action are the only issues remaining to be decided by the court.)

Baker Tract Now Part of City District

County Auditor Harry R. Allen has received confirmation from the State Board of Education of the transfer of the 167-acre Baker Addition from Miami Trace to the Washington C. H. School District.

The state board, at the request of the city Board of Education, made the transfer of the acreage, adjoining the Belle Aire subdivision, three weeks ago.

The Baker tract, as yet undeveloped, was annexed to the City of Washington C. H. for municipal purposes by action of Fayette County Commissioners on Feb. 18 of this year and by formal approval of City Council on May 22.

Fayette County and Miami Trace school boards had objected to immediate transfer of the acreage, although the county board had by resolution on June 29 agreed to turn the tract over to the city district as soon as the city board showed "valid evidence" that it planned to build a school on the 167-acre plot.

Baker previously had offered to give a part of the tract to the board for school purposes, and the board has an option on additional acreage.

Men Around Ike Give Sunny Outlook to Latest Illness

WASHINGTON (AP)—Men around President Eisenhower have sought to give his illness a sunny look—and brushed aside any idea he might resign. But he himself has probably considered it, whether or not he's rejected it.

This country's problems—and those of the world—are more critical now than at any time of Eisenhower's two previous major illnesses: the heart attack in 1955 and the intestinal operation in 1956.

In the weeks and years ahead this country will need the most competent and active leadership it can get. Eisenhower already has shown himself sensitive to the problems of an ill president and the need for one able to do his job.

After his heart attack and his operation, he said that if he ever felt he couldn't carry out his duties, he would tell the public. So the problem of his own ability to fulfill his job has been high in his consciousness.

He has been less active—as he said he would be before last year's election—since the two previous illnesses. Just how much his latest seizure cuts down on his activity and ability remains to be seen.

Both Eisenhower's press secretary, James Hagerty, and Vice President Nixon, who would become president if Eisenhower quit have attempted to inject an optimistic note into the mild stroke he suffered this week.

Although London newspapers predicted Eisenhower would quit, very little of that talk has been raised in this country. But Hagerty and Nixon both discounted any thought of Eisenhower's resigning. Hagerty called it laughable.

Although the stroke impaired Eisenhower's ability to use or find certain words—a condition his doctors said is clearing up—Hagerty said the President was amused by his difficulty.

Nixon, in his desire to picture Eisenhower as full of vitality, went so far Wednesday night as to picture him as a "caged lion" in his eagerness to get to his job. His doctors said he'll have to reduce his activity substantially for some weeks.

When Eisenhower suffered his heart attack in September 1955, Congress had gone home, the world was fairly calm, this country appeared in no danger, and Eisenhower with the help of his aides had three months to get ready for the next Congress.

When he had his intestinal operation in June 1956, the world was still calm, Eisenhower's major problems with Congress were pretty well finished, and Congress itself was anxious to get home for the 1956 elections.

But this week's mild stroke hit Eisenhower just after Russian missile and satellite developments pointed up a need for the ablest direction to help this country catch up with the Soviets.

At the same time, Eisenhower was preparing to go to Paris for a conference with allies who not only were badly split but had suddenly been forced to wonder about this country's leadership after the shock administered by the Russian Sputniks.

In addition now, when he must reduce his activity, has only a month in which to get ready for Congress, which returns in January. That means: preparing his budget and organizing his ideas on the various programs, including defense, which he'll have to lay before Congress in 1958.

City Police and Firemen Ask Salary Hikes

A letter signed by all 12 members of the Police Department requested a 15 per cent pay hike plus six paid holidays per year.

Firemen, who in some cases draw $20 to $30 less per month than officers of the same rank in the Police Department, ask that they be granted salary increases equal to those which may be granted to policemen, and also an adjustment to the same salaries per month which would be paid to policemen. Ten firemen signed the pay hike request.

Members of both departments say that present salaries are inadequate "to make ends meet" and that they must seek other jobs during time off from their regular duties.

• • •

THE POLICE request points out that a 15 per cent increase would make the salary of a patrolman $4,554 per year, which, the letter says, is "just the average pay of other police departments in the 10,000 to 15,000 bracket."

Present salary of a patrolman is approximately $3,960 for a 48-hour week with no paid holidays.

Firemen work a 66 - hour week. Their position cites a number of inequities in pay as compared with the Police Department salary list.

Present police salaries run from $330 to $383 per month for the chief who also gets an additional $100 monthly for serving as court bailiff.

Last departmental raises were on Jan. 1 of this year.

• • •

COUNCIL took no immediate action on the proposals although City Manager James F. Parkinson recommended that the salary of substitute firemen be increased from $252 to $300 monthly.

At the same time Council agreed that Chalmers Markham, acting superintendent of the sewage treatment plant should be raised from $1.60 per hour to $400 per month and that he be given the title of superintendent.

Gerald Courter will receive $350 per month as assistant superintendent instead of his present rate of $1.47 an hour.

These increases fulfill commitments made to both men when they were employed.

Bridge Repairs Discussed at Council Session

Commissioners Voice Views On Maintenance

A discussion of bridge maintenance within the city limits was on the agenda at a meeting of City Council Wednesday night, with County Commissioners Robert Cockerill, Cliff Hughes and Ralph Minton appearing to present the county's views on the subject.

City Manager James F. Parkinson pointed out that many of the bridges over Paint Creek are in need of repair and that immediate attention should be given to the S. North St., Sycamore St., W. Temple St., Elm St. and Oakland Ave. spans.

Parkinson said that since the city receives no money from the county for bridge repair that he feels the county should maintain the bridges with cooperation from the city.

Cockerill and Hughes observed that, according to their interpretation of the law, the commissioners are responsible only for those bridges within the corporation which carry county or state roads. "If dilapidated bridges are our responsibility we will do the work, but if they are the responsibility of the city then the municipality should foot the bills," the commissioners said.

• • •

IT WAS estimated that needed repairs to the shaky North St. bridge alone will cost a minimum of $10,000.

The friendly discussion ended with an agreement that County Prosecutor Rollo M. Marchant and City Solicitor William Junk should make a study of the situation and ascertain which of the bridges at any time in the past were parts of county highways.

The county engineer's maps also will be consulted on the question of which arteries are county roads and which are city streets.

Parkinson, at the same time, suggested that the solicitor investigate the possibility of the city sharing in a countywide bridge fund.

Commissioners agreed that they will erect load limit signs on the weakened bridges after County Engineer Charles Wagner inspects them.

RAY FRENCH of the Webber C. French Co. questioned Council about its annexation plans and expressed his interest in the industrial development of the city.

He said he wants to see the city grow industrially and added that Washington C. H. is being strangled because the municipality has outgrown its corporate limits. He stated that the city should consider annexing unimproved sites along railroads which would be attractive to industry.

Harford Hankins, local realtor, also voiced an interest in industrial development of the city.

Council President Ronald Cornwell told the small group of citizens present that Council has no concrete plans for annexation of additional territory at this time but that the matter has been discussed informally and will receive further study.

Councilman Ben Norris said that Council is interested in potential industrial sites and that at least one industry is presently interested in such sites here, but he did not identify the firm.

The question of sewer construction also is an important factor in any Council decision on the subject of annexation, Norris said.

Councilmen indicated that they hope to have some kind of annexation proposal ready before the May primary.

Council approved more than a dozen year-end fund transfers and additional appropriations from the general fund, and selected Monday afternoon, Dec. 23, as the date for their final meeting of the year.

Combine Accident Strips Farmer but He Stays on Job

MATADOR, Tex. (AP) — Wind whipped a loose tip of farmer E.D. Lawrence's overalls into a combine drive shaft Wednesday.

Lawrence, 68, struggled to jerk free. But the combine pulled off both his boots, snatched away his overalls, wound away most of his long underwear and scraped the skin off both legs.

(The Miami Trace Supreme Court case was brought by board members of that district to test the validity of a $1,652,500 bond issue for school construction approved at the same time the city bond issue was passed.
